'GRUDGING' OKAY TO WAR GAS TRIP

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. defence department is going ahead with a massive transfer of lethal war gas from Okinawa to Oregon through the Strait of Juan de Fuca after obtaining approval Monday of shipment plans by the department of health, education and welfare.

"Grudgingly," was the term used by one official describing clearance of the shipment plans, which have been under review authorities for at least four months.

WomenTaken For a Ride In Markets

By JACK SCOTT (First of Two Articles)

It's Russian Roulette, not judgment shopping, out there in Supermarketville.

The housewives of Victoria, faced with rising food costs as budget-punishing as any in Canada, are failing conspicuously to use "consumer power" as a means to control prices.

The silent majority of women shoppers are bewitched, bothered and bewildered by an Alice's Wonderland of sophisticated, high-pressure marketing methods that have resulted in all but total defeat in The Great War of Making Ends Meet.

Women are being taken for a ride every time the pilot a shopping cart through inviting corridors of merchandise calculated to dazzle and confuse them in the struggle to stretch a dollar that's lost nearly 20 per cent of its purchasing power in only

'Helpless' in the Marketplace

While soaring food prices hit hardest at the poor and the pensioned — so much so that Victoria families on welfare are incapable of realizing the minimum requirements for a definitively healthful diet — moderate and middle income families are caught helplessly in a marketplace where their ability to provide checks and reins on prices no longer significantly influences the staggering cost

These are the angry, well-documented views of a small group of Victoria women who think it's not too late to do something about it.

They are, in the words of one of them, "Nice Nellies who've decided it's time to start kicking, scratching and bitching.

Focus on Food Forum Set

Still smouldering at the refusal of chain store executives to participate in a Focus on Food consumers' forum to be held here Wednesday night in co-operation with the Greater Victoria School Board adult education division, five newly-militant leaders of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada have gone to the attack against the apparent indifference of the shopping

Women are just not rising to their bilities and taking the initiative," says Mrs. Helen Forrest, president of the local branch.

Its membership alone - a roll-call of just 400 women after 23 years of existence, less than half the membership of the Victoria Women's Canadian Club — is a reflection, as they see it, of the unwillingness or inability of Victoria women to organize in a battle they fight, individually, every shopping day of their lives.

The incentives to join, they say, are obvious: Consumer prices in 1969 rocketed at the fastest annual rate in almost 20 years.

 Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures showed a food price rise of 3.6 per cent last year, the sharpest increase since 1966.

 Vietoria shares with Vancouver and the Maritime cities the burden of the highest metropolitan food costs in the country, due mainly to the centralizing of food processing in Ontario and Quebec and fewer competing retail outlets.

• Gallup pollsters have discovered the nottoo-surprising fact that the high cost of living is the primary concern of the average Canadian.

It is costing the Victoria shopper $16.46 to buy what $10 bought in 1949.

Yet the one existing voluntary organization set up to combat the runaway costs of food and the merchandising gimmickry that contributes to it can show no appreciable gain in support in a steadily worsening situation.

Group Needs 'Silent Majority'

Says Mrs. Ruth Clay, a trained home economist and recording secretary of the Victoria branch: "Women say to us, Till give you the $3 for membership, but don't ask me to join, I don't want to join another thing.' This is the silent majority. Without them we can do very little, There's indignation, sure, but it's short-lived. They blow up in the store and then go home and simmer down and say to themselves, 'What's the use?'."

There's strong evidence, too, that most women have abandoned what economist John Kenneth Galbraith called "consumer sovereignty" ability and the determination to control prices through selective buying.

The vigilantes of the Victoria branch cite the current reaction to the continually rising costs of Continued on Page 3

Arms Seized In House Raid

VANCOUVER (CP) - An RCMP spokesman said today that 47 persons have been arrested so far in the biggest roundup of suspected drug peddlars in British Columbia history.

Among those arrested Mon day was 18-year-old Richard Jesmer of Niagara Falls, Ont., the youth who accused Prime Minister Trudeau of assaulting him last August during a wild demonstration in front of the Seaforth Armory here.

Jesmer's attempt to have a common assault charge laid against the Prime Minister for slapping him in the face was dismissed by a justice of the peace.

The youth was charged with trafficking in LSD and was remanded without bail when he appeared before a provincial court judge later Mon-

Police also revealed that a quantity of arms was seized in one of the houses raided.

A spokesman said they seized a .32-calibre revolver, a Sten gun, a shotgun and three rifles along with knives, a bayonet and a quantity of ammunition.

Monday, police issued war-rants for 97 persons including 16 juveniles and eight women More than 50 Vancouver city police and RCMP officers took part in raids Monday.

They were acting on information supplied by four undercover RCMP officers. Two of the officers posed as long-haired hippies and two others infiltrated the drug d istribution underworld, a police spokesman said.

The officers were brought into Vancouver from other areas last Nov. 15 to investigage trafficking in marijuana, mescaline, heroin methadon cocaine, LSD, barbituarates, amphetamines and hashish.

The House of Representatives select committee on crime said marijuana traffic "plays a major role in leading increasing numbers of young Americans into tragic drug dependence and into lives of crime and degradation."

But the committee's report, prepared for release today, called the present stiff and un evenly-enforced penalties for possession of marijuana a threat to respect for law in general.

Sharp Eases Anxiety Over NATO Pullout

Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp is reported to have told group of prominent West German industrialists today that Canada's negotiations to recognize Communist China have taken a hopeful turn.

Informants said he also advised them that the Soviet Union is no longer opposing participation of Canada and the United States in any future European security con ference.

Sharp made these responses during a question period at a luncheon by the West German Foreign Affairs Institute which included German industrial leaders and prominent bankers. Some West German concern was reported to have been expressed over Canada's decision to withdraw one-half of its NATO force in Europe Informants said Sharp responded by maintaining that Canada would be on the front line of any nuclear exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union and that Canada might well be the first country to be eliminated in such a holocaust.

He said Canadian troops in Europe involved heavy cost and the Canadian government could not justify such cost in view of the need for reducing administration's overall expenditures

Plommer said Crux's Washington State holdings consist of a 50 per cent interest in a management services company which operates a Seattle hotel. He said the manage-ment company's contract "continues to be in force and up to September, 1969, has drawn about $100,000."

From this, Plommer estimated Crux's income at $4,000 a month. In addition, about $600,000 in Commonwealth funds was channelled into a subsidiary, Guarante Establishment, in Leichten-

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

In Chicago, new York and Los Angeles, the people breathe at altitudes that range from sea level to as high as 600 feet. When they go to another climate where the altitude is higher—sometimes a lot higher—they discover how their lungs shift their method of breathing.

The rapidity of the breathing and the amount of work the human system does in its breathing effort increases by about 15 per cent when you go, for example, to a mile-high city like Denver or Salt Lake City from a sea-level city like Portland, Ore. The first few days at the higher altitude appear to increase the depth of your breathing more than the rate of

At 15,000 feet, your breathing rate and the depth of your breathing will increase gradually, as you sleep, to a maximum over a two- or three-minute period. Then they will decrease so that you are barely breathing at all for another two minutes. It isn't long, however, before you get used to it.

The 3,200 mile East African Safari Rally has traditionally been the toughest international rally for both cars and drivers. This year's rally was the toughest yet. The cars had to plow through mud two feet deep in places and in others, the thick, billowing dust was a tremendous hazard. But worst of all was the very high average speed of 70 miles per hour.

The rally was so difficult this year only 19 of the 91 starters finished and 9 of them were Datsuns. This is Datsun's second success in the Safari. Last year also, Datsun was awarded the Manufacturers' Team Prize. Here in Canada, Datsuns are among the most successful rally cars. The record includes winning the 1970 Canadian Winter Rally and 1967 and 1969 National Rally Championships for automobile manufacturers. Datsun's successes are tributes to Datsun's ruggedness and reliability. Test one yourself - it's a great economy car, too.

Dice Loaded Against the Consumer meat — a spiral that's taken a blade roast from 69 cents a pound in April of 1966 to 79 cents a pound in April of 1969 to 93 cents a pound today; or round steak from 79 cents a pound in April of 1966 to 99 cents a pound in April of 1969 to $1.37 a pound today.

"Meat prices are shocking and incredible," says Mrs. Norma Morriss, a former nutritionist with the provincial health department who will join a panel of experts at Wednesday's consumer forum, "but shoppers aren't reacting as they did a

"There's an attitude now of defeatism, an admission of how ineffective we are in influencing the price factor of supply and demand. We know that a boycott simply doesn't work in one store or in one area.

"The only answer is to have a strong, disciplined organization on a province-wide or nation-wide scale. Right now that seems a long way off, if it ever comes."

The leaders of the Victoria group readily admit that even a completely knowledgeable and discriminating public is not the whole answer to rising prices.

They call for immediate reforms on three other levels:

1. More government action, federally and provincially, to regulate and police grades and standards and to provide the buying public with precise guides on products.

Mrs. Barbara Rolls, past-president of the B.C. branch of the 23,000-member Canadian organization, described the Canadian Consumer Council under Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford as "an outfit that's done practically nothing and ignored every priority we've put to them." Much of the council's work, in the words of Mrs. Forrest is "a criminal waste of

(Says she: "Basford is just not doing his job." Other members termed it "ridiculous" that one young woman was the council's sole representative for British Columbia and Alberta.)

2. More research and honest information from the manufacturers and the giant food chains (often the same) to provide buyers with reliable, understandable information on weights and

(Says Mrs. Morriss: "The individual shopper has responsibilities to choose properly and to inform herself, yes, but the information she needs is not provided by the governments, the manufacturers or the retail outlets. There is a tremendous credibility gap. As it is today nobody plays fair. When it comes to value the consumer hasn't the know-how and hasn't even a token of

3. More education, at every level, for the housewives and the housewives-to-be. The Victoria women advocate compulsory, rather than elective, courses in the economics of home management with heavy emphasis on the complexities of budgeting, from Grade 8 onwards.

(Housewives in the "young marrieds" category are, by common agreement, the least-informed, least discriminatory of Victoria's shop-

Education is the key to an informed public, in the opinion of the Victoria women, but they recognize that the dice are so loaded against the prospect of consumer expertise that Mrs. Forrest admits: "We may still win some of the battles along the way, but it looks as if we'll lose the war." Even the professionals in consumerism, they say, don't have enough hard information to ask the right questions, let alone get the right answers. They quote two officials of the national organization to illustrate the magnitude of the problem.

Mrs. Glenora Slimmon, immediate past-presi-t of the CAC, puts it this way: "In today's dent of the CAC, puts it this way: market place, with the multiplicity of brands, the confusion and proliferation of sizes and shapes, the glitter and puffery of advertising and the lack of buymanship information for home and health, we must make a career of being a consumer."

And Jacob S. Ziegil, professor of law at McGill and a director of the national organization, puts it more bluntly: "Even the most sophisticated consumer is unqualified to appraise intelligently the quality of many of the goods he is purchasing.

Part of the problem, in the opinion of Mrs. Morriss, who has seen the shoppers' dilemma from the standpoint of a nutritionist and now as a young mother, is a reluctance by the average housewife

"Years ago women felt it was their role to find out things, but now they're afraid to admit that they lack the knowledge, that they're inadequate," says Mrs. Morris. "Being a good housewife is a very personal thing. Being a good consumer is a very personal thing. You don't admit your inadequacies easily. The fact is that there can't help but be a lack of knowledge.

"Three years ago there were between 6,000 and 8,000 items on the market shelves. Now there are more than 12,000 items. Seventy per cent of the items on the supermarket shelves are packaged. "If you turn in desperation to the pamphlets and material that's put out by government or the manufacturers you find only generalities, never the facts on specific items.

"Women are afraid of admitting ignorance. They don't know how to ask. They just accept what's there. It is a great, cunning conspiracy. The food industry is organized and computerized. We, the shoppers, are not.

"The industry is informed and expert. We are not. It is no longer a question of the whims, wants and the will of the buyer, but the control and manipulation of the gullible."

The Victoria women are agreed that advertising is the most powerful and misused weapon in the arsenal of the food chains.

Mrs. Leona Mace, an executive on the local and provincial branches of the CAC, says: "Rightly or wrongly, the advertising man's idea of a woman's mentality is that she will believe the purest hogwash. They say 'You asked for it,' as if we really did. They say because a product is new that we'll buy it for that reason alone.

"Once you've learned that the advertising man is out to take advantage of women's curiosity or their desire for status half the battle is won. It then becomes a battle of wits."

Agrees Mrs. Clay: "Most of the choices made by women are based on emotion, not facts, and this is precisely what the advertisers have hit upon as the way to a woman's consent to buy."

"Yes," says Mrs. Morriss. "Most women shoppers make their choice on their habits and what they learned from their parents. These are no longer reliable guides because of the increasing number of new products.

"Most women aren't in a position to have the information, the time, the knowledge or the ability to shop wisely. Our role as consumers, to influence the marketplace for our own purposes, but also for people on fixed incomes and elderly people on pensions, is increasingly futile. Only an organized effort will influence the market.'

Rail Unions Fight Bosses

TORONTO (CP) - A national campaign to try to block abandonment of passenger service by CP Rail and Canadian National Railways has been launched by Canada's railway unions, representing 100,000 employees.

A memorandum circulated Monday among railway workers by the Canadian Railway Labor Association recommends that they advise their locals to form joint action committees in com munities where hearings on applications for abandonment are being held by the Canadian transport commission.

CP Rail and the CNR have submitted 31 applications for discontinuance of inter-city and regional passenger services in various parts of the country. The railways claimed losses of more than $30,000,000 on these services last year.

A Velvet Gauntlet?

OUEBEC'S PREMIER BER- transpires is attributable to him. trand has issued an ultimatum to the rest of Canada: he demands that a new constitution be formulated by 1974—presumably incorporating Quebec's demands for special status-or the province will hold an parently interpreted by Mr. Berindependence referendum. The challenge has a very questionable ring despite the finality with which Mr. Bertrand delivers it. It is obviously a Quebec-first cry of a sufficiently vague nature to appeal to as many sections of the Quebec people as possible—a sort of whathave-we-got-to-lose appeal which still carries a heartening note of defiance.

It appears to be predicated on Mr. Bertrand's continued presence at the head of the Quebec government-and while the latter is quite possible it is by no means guaranteed at this point, three weeks be- ince? fore the Quebec election. It carries the implication that any new constitution will be to the order of Mr. Bertrand and his Union Nationale party. And it rests heavily on the likelihood that there will be constitutional provisions in effect by 1974 in any case, quite without the threats of Mr. Bertrand. He has it is really a very moderate appeal chosen a date far enough in the future to be able to claim that what guards for himself.

The alternative — a provincial referendum on whether or not Quebec should remain within Confederation on substantially the same terms as at present-is also aptrand as a likely negative. But here again he takes much for granted, and this may well be indicated in the voting on April 29. The referendum itself, if it ever came to pass and proved unfavorable to Confederation, would present vast problems to separatists. Could separatism deprive Canadians in Quebec of their nationality by decree? Could a province opt out of confederation at this point even if it wished? How would a separated Quebec reimburse the federal government for its multi-million-dollar assets remaining within the prov-

But these are at the moment entirely theoretical questions, and are likely to remain so. Mr. Bertrand's provocative election campaign challenge will be judged for sincerity, and for practicality, by the voters. His roar may sound alarming to the rest of Canada, but on examination with a number of built-in safe-

The U.S. Political Spectrum Blurs

NEW FORCES IN THE UNITED States political system have had a topsy-turvy effect on the old party loyalties that divided the great majority of United States citizens into Democrats or Republicans. In the 1964 United States election several million Republicans deserted to Lyndon Johnson and the Democrats; in 1968 desertions from the Democratic ranks were even higher. Of the 43 million people who voted for Johnson in 1964, at least 16 millions switched to George Wal-

This penchant for political partyhopping is most pronounced among the young. The Washington Post reports that in 1968 nearly two-thirds of the voters under 30 split their tickets. More people under 30 outside the South supported George Wallace than any other age group, according to various polls. But it was also youth that generated will be 58 million voters in the 20to-34-year age group and both Re- more relevant forces.

publicans and Democrats want to capture this vote.

While the Democrats are still the majority party-according to a recent poll 48 per cent of the U.S. electorate are Democrats compared with 33 per cent for the Republicans -they have reason to worry that their party is losing its political grip. President Nixon's "southern strategy" has delivered almost all of the South to the Republicans. And the Democrats no longer have the labor vote. Hubert Humphrey received only half the labor vote in

The shifting of a discernible pattern in United States politics indicates a rejection of old party loyalties and slogans in favor of strong personalities with believable programs. At a time when voters are uncertain, politicians are usually more unsure of the direction in which to lead. But one aspect is certhe splinter McCarthy movement in tain: the old political parties will the 1968 primaries. By 1980 there have to adjust to the new political reality or be seriously challenged by

For Better Understanding

Jean Chretien has advanced a useful suggestion in proposing that Indian languages and culture should be part of the curriculum of schools attended by a significant number of Indians. The scheme, however, is too restricted. The subjects should be of general interest to Canadians who could profit from a knowledge of such matters if they are ever going to understand Indians and the latter's desire to preserve their iden-

A secondary benefit would accrue from a general presentation of such courses, along with Indian history. If all Canadians had an opportunity to study them, more critical

INDIAN AFFAIRS MINISTER interest could be developed than would be the case if instruction were tailored solely for Indians. History, as many scholars have pointed out, tends to be given the national bias of the people for whom it is written. With that in mind, courses in Indian culture for all Canadians should be a more balanced, broader and deeper study than any synthetic preparation made solely for Indian consumption. Among other advantages, such treatment could assist all Canadians to understand more sympathetically the Indian and his problems, his strengths and weaknesses, and lead to a more harmonious relationship between the first Canadians and those who came

Sport's Balance of Trade

A PART FROM THE FEELINGS of certain club partisans, it is of relatively little importance that the Stanley Cup play-offs this season should proceed with no Canadian city represented in the schedule. Last year's champions, Montreal Canadiens, were eliminated Sunday night and Toronto Maple Leafs were never in the running. The top trophy for the game Canada invented will go to a club representing an American city-taken there by Canadian players imported to make their contribution to this department of sport's entertainment

The situation is not to be confused with that of the World Hockey Championships, won recently by Russia with Canada declining to participate. In that so-called amateur tournament, hockey has achieved major political status the cold war and all that.

In the Stanley Cup play, on the other hand, Canada has merely observed the philosophy of continentalism in the reversible falls of the brawn drain. We sell hockey players to the United States to win hockey's top prizes; the United States sells football players to win, for one of a number of Canadian cities, the Grey Cup, priority bauble in the CFL. Reciprocity, you might say.

IN A TRUDEAU SILENCE

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Hints of Direct Controls Emerging

Canadian nation is allowed to hear a grim secret concerning its own public business. This shaking disclosure comes at last from Pierre Trudeau, who believes in full communication with the people, at the right moment but no sooner. During the Liberal party leadership struggle of 1968, he informs Time magazine, "we were having a terrible crisis over the dollar. I suppose I was a bit traumatized by those cabinet meetings when we almost saw devaluation of the dollar. I realized that the generosity of governments . . . had almost brought us to economic disaster.

"I vowed that we wouldn't let it happen again and that is why so much of our time is taken up with planning and why the government appears to be moving rather slowly to those who hoped that we would bring in great decisions quickly."

So now we know. The nation faced a devaluation of its currency and a disaster two years ago because its governments had been too generous in their spending. Which, translated into plain English, means that these governments had inflated the national economy to the breaking point. And this point has not been passed yet.

Mr. Trudeau's revelation is interesting to historians but it tells us little about our current affairs. If government could hide its true thoughts in 1968, what thoughts is it hiding now when the crisis, in somewhat different form, is still with

Time Limited

The prime minister does not say, and haps, for the time being, he not to say, as the Pearson government was wise not to reveal the earlier exchange crisis and start a panic. But Mr. Trudeau's time is limited, and limited, oddly enough, by his own "planning."

At the first of the year he promised to curb inflation, enforced all the orthodox fiscal and monetary measures, persuaded business managers to restrain their profits and asked the labor unions to restrain their wages. Such was the grand plan, devised in two years of cabinet meditation. Already it is in ruins because labor rejects any restraint, and prices, inevitably, are rising as fast as

Obviously, when he has promised so much and delivered so little, Mr. Trudeau cannot abandon the crisis to the present grand anti-climax and trust that inflation will quietly go away. He is bound to do something or confess that government has failed as badly as predecessors.

If the prime minister again feels "a bit traumatized," we need not suppose that he really expected the grand plan to work on schedule. He is too wise to have counted on anything so easy. Once he knew that labor would not co-operate he must have known that the plan could not possibly succeed and he must surely be pondering an alternative. What is it?

When Professor Kenneth Galbraith. the famous American economist, conferred privately with Mr. Trudeau last autumn, I ventured to suggest that their conversation might have important results later on. We may see them before

Galbraithian Frankness

The prime minister remained silent after this talk but the professor made no secret of his own thoughts. In a public speech at Ottawa he argued that all efforts to halt inflation by the orthodox policies would fail, simply because they could not check the appetite of the giant industries for profits and of the giant unions for wages. As long as they handed on their rising costs of production to the helpless, unorganized consumers, the price spiral would continue.

So it did, while the government maintained the brave hope, and may even have believed in moments of FTER a time-lag of two years, the optimism, that the grand plan would work somehow, despite the professor's warning. Though the hope failed, the government kept a stiff upper lip and refused to admit that Mr. Galbraith may have been right from the start in proposing direct control over wages, profits and prices in a few key economic areas. Recently, however, certain trial balloons have appeared in a stormy sky.

Thus Senator Maurice Lamontagne, an unsuccessful politician but a distinguished Canadian economist, tells the government, as Mr. Galbraith told it, that all the present policies are futile and destructive. In the jargon of his trade, the senator says that "this kind of inflation ... originates from the use of monopolistic controls in the supply side by both business and labor unions, not from excessive over-all demand . . . It is quite possible to have at the same time cost-push inflation and deficient aggregate demand, rising prices and reces

This is precisely what Mr. Galbraith said last autumn in simpler language and both economists reach an identical conclusion. As the senator puts it, "I am afraid that compulsion will have to be used in some form and in some areas to curb the power of bigness in business and in the labor unions.

If these views came from an ordinary member of the Senate they might not be significant, but they come from the inside of the Liberal establishment, from Lester Pearson's chief adviser and idea man, from an intimate friend and supporter of Mr. Trudeau. They can only mean, at the very least, that the theory of direct controls, always rejected up to now, has become respectable.

No Explanations

How controls could be enforced under the Canadian constitution, which gives the provinces jurisdiction over most wages, profits and prices, the senator does not tell us, if he knows. How they work in practice—a hideous administrative nightmare at best-he does not explain, either. These, apparently, are problems for the lawvers and the bureaucrats, who thrive on a diet of mysteries and riddles. Anyhow, it seems quite safe to guess that a traumatized government is considering a final desperate leap into the unknown, a lunge at the heart of the crisis when all the tinkering on the periphery has so clearly failed. And after more years or so, we may learn what Mr. Trudeau, the master of communication, was actually thinking in the spring of 1970.

The advertisement gave the address of Members of Parliament as a box number at the Ottawa Post Office.

While I support the idea of your newspaper publishing advertisements on public issues, I regret that at the same time you have published misleading information which permits strangers to intercept and tamper with the mail.

Many people write to their Members of Parliament on personal matters, grievances with civil servants or the government, quasi-legal problems and a host of other subjects which they may well not want read by someone other than the person to whom they addressed the letter. Such privacy is their right. The advertisement you published leads people to believe that the correct way to get in touch with myself or David Groos is by sending letters to a post office box which has been rented by a private citizen in Ontario. Whether this man or his employees opens our mail, desfroys it or sends it on to us, Mr. Groos and I do not know and cannot guarantee.

How would a lawyer, or any other professional person feel if a private citizen similarly placed ads which could lead to his confidential mail being intercepted? And how would the person writing feel?

I would be grateful, therefore, if you would inform your readers that the correct addresses for Mr. Groos and myself are:

I trust, in view of the seriousness of the matter, you will give this letter the same prominence which the advertise ment received.

FROM BRUSSELS

A Gift of Stability to Europe From NATO

NATO, which observed its 21st birth- or accidental spill-over from Berlin or difficult gift of peace to an entire generation which has shown no adequate appreciation of either this present. Thanks solely to NATO's deterrent value there has been more stability in Europe since the Alliance brought with it a blanket A m erican security guarantee than this continent knew through-out the preceding century. This stability was not produced by sudden Kremlin benevolence; any Hugarian or Czech will confirm that statement.

The trouble is, peace brings its own problems including overpopulation, social gerontocracy and pollution. Nature's brutally effective system of ecology, partly dependent upon killing, has happily been upset, but the balance hasn't been righted.

Mankind is faced with what Euripides called "a plethora of humanity" which he said the Gods cured by using Helen of Troy to launch Greeks against Phrygians. Such drastic means, familiar for centuries before and after Euripides, are now excluded. Quite apart from questions of morality, they have simply become too dangerous. No ecological balance is obtained by destroying every

United States Muscle

When the North Atlantic Treaty was signed, Western Europe had the desire to defend itself but it did not have the means until the United States supplied them. The question today is whether, now possessing far more means, Western Europe still has the desire. Long enduring peace often erodes popular resolu-

Although it has never met pledged goals, the Alliance has still managed to build up enough military strength to insure against deliberate attack. This, however, costs heavily. Both NATO and the Warsaw Pact pay an average of approximately 8 per cent of their Gross National Product for defense but, high as the price is, it has managed to produce formula for peaceful co-existence which is not something to be glibly discarded.

No Soviet planner could guarantee to his government even one inviolate day of safety from riposte in the case of a deliberate Westward strike and NATO is now strong enough to handle any incident day Saturday, has given the Czechoslovakia. But while NATO has deterred war in Europe and can clearly defend this area against anything but the maddest form of holocaust, the question remains: What will Europe do with its legacy?

> sufficient will to forge a future for themselves during the next 21 years? Will burgeoning negotiations show that the United States and Europe can continue to give each other insurance policies while still further reducing both the price and the risk that these would ever have to be collected?

The answer is being tested in various diplomatic laboratories: SALT negotiations; new Big-Four discussions on Berlin; the so-called Bonn bilaterals, meaning West Germany's talks with East Germany, Russia and Poland.

Only if there is a generalized forward move in these encounters can there be serious hope of reducing the insurance rates of European peace by simultaneous East-West arms reduction. The moment has not yet come for audacious or unilaterial experiments in trying to change a system that is demonstrably workable and beneficial to everyone

It would be idiotic to yield to political pressures and start weakening NATO's defense by pulling out U.S. troops just as the Russians have strengthened their forces. The psychological effect might produce the "Finlandization" of a free Europe that had come to doubt both itself and its greatest external friend. Premature moves to weaken Alliance strength just at the moment of gingerly negotiations with Moscow would be incredibly dangerous.

An atmosphere of self-confidence is required to bargain successfully. This is, not a question of maintaining positions of strength to impose the West's will on the East but to prevent precisely the reverse.

It is doubtful if NATO will survive another 21 years and one may sincerely hope circumstances will so change that it would no longer be necessary. Both NATO and the Warsaw Pact could profitably spend less on weapons systems and more on the problems of the peace these have so far secured.

But until proof of changed circum stances has been confirmed, the generation that has grown up under NATO might do worse than to continue it. The Alliance is expensive but, for peace, the price is right.

Looking Back

From the Times of April 7, 1910:

Today we are told by a leading newspaper of the Republic that the shiver of apprehension which ran through the business world when a breach with the Do minion seemed possible was a sign ificant admission of the value of Canadian trade to the United States. Does it not seem reasonable that the advantage might be greater still if the trade in question were more equally proportioned?

Should Canada Change Its Caribbean Role?

By CLYDE SANGER

The Trinidad riots, the fiery threats by a black power leader against Canadian High Commissioner Gerald Rau, are like flares that suddenly illuminate an exposed landscape

In this case, the landscape is Canada's foreign policy toward the Commonwealth Caribbean and it is a rather barren sight. There seems to be no policy, that has been thought out in any depth, toward the Commonwealth Caribbean. The policy, such as it is, is one of general good neighborliness mixed with vague expressions of special relation-

It is curious that the Caribbean has been given no prominence in the review of foreign policy which the federal Government is just concluding. There will be papers published soon on Canada and Europe, Canada and Latin American, Canada and the rim of the Pacific, Canada and the United Nations and on Canada and its huge neighbor.

But it seems there will only be passing references in this review to Canadian relations with the 4 million West Indians whose connections with Canada, for good or ill, are closer than those in, say, Denmark or Peru.

Crucial Question

It has been left to the Senate's Committee on Foreign Affairs, operating independently of the Government, to fill the gap in the foreign policy review. Under Senator John Aird, the committee has been studying the Caribbean area for more than 13 months of steady, if irregular, hearings. Events have caught up with the committee for, as Senator Aird said this week: "Frankly, when we began, I never realized this would turn out to be such a crucial question.

Only a day before the first riots in Trinidad, the committee heard a brief from Canadian University service Overseas which warned that the trust West Indians had in "is deteriorating in many areas" and sharply citicized Canadian businessmen, tourists, the Government and the voluntary agencies for the fact that many West Indians feel that in the relationship "they are getting the short end of

The well-documented CUSO brief had a good response from nearly all senators. The chairman, a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia which, through subsidiaries, does half of Jamaica's banking business and almost as much in Trinidad, said he was "delighted with its candor." Two others said it was the most useful brief they had had, for it had "a convincing validity."

The hearings have already had useful results. They have highlighted the problem of the "brain drain" of qualified West Indians to Canada. William Demas, Trinidad's chief told the senators that stopping the exodus was probably more important than receiving foreign aid.

This month they brought into the open a study done for the Canadian Government on the implications of a free trade arrangement with the Commonwealth Caribbean. The study, compiled by Roy Mathews of the Private Planning Association of Canada, had been kept behind departmental doors since it was submitted in June.

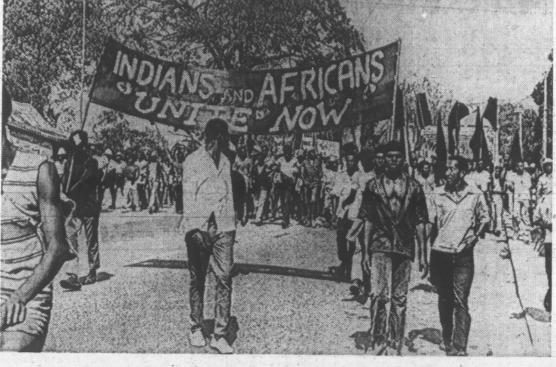

Canadian Investment

But the one set of facts and figures the senators haven't been able to dig out concerned Canadian investment in the area and the profits taken out.

Senator Allister Grosart has asked all sorts of expert witnesses about Canadian investment and received no satisfactory answer. Maurice Stong, president of the Canadian International Development Agency, had no figures but said he thought the Caribbean recipient of Canadian investment."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said he could not depend on Canadian statistics to find out how much investment there is in the Caribbean, but thought it is something over $500-million. He had no idea how much was

At present, there is a total two-way trade of $200-million a year and Canada provides $24-million in development assistance — delivered in terms of teachers, water supplies, airports and school buildings.

Down the way where the nights are less g ay Trinidad militants are on the march.

Mr. Sharp told the committee what the Government had done to follow up the Ottawa conference on Canadian-Caribbean relations in 1966. It had put $10-million into the Caribbean Development Bank; it had gone into partnership with Air Jamaica; it had given the governments a rebate of 29 cents a hundred-weight on the tariff for raw sugar; its officials had worked to conclude the International Sugar

A study of direct shipping lines between Canada and Caribbean islands also had been finished, he said in November. But his tone suggested that there was no enthusiasm in Canada for enlarging services (mainly the Saguenay Shipping Line.)

Mr. Sharp didn't have anything substantial to say about the study on free trade possibilities. This was perhaps understandable because when the document was released this month, it carried no clear conclusions and in general was lukewarm about the benefits its authors thought might flow from a removal of tariffs.

The economists who wrote it went beyond the narrow terms Ottawa gave them of looking at free trade implications from the Canadian interest. They interpreted their task as assessing how much good it would do the Caribbean states in their broad development.

Fairly Skeptical

All the same, they thought free trade would not greatly increase Caribbean agricultural exports to Canada. They found tariffs weren't the barrier so much as buying patterns lack of confidence in the Caribbean know-how and a reputation as irregular suppliers

There was more chance that some manufacturers, like textile and garment makers, could find a Canadian market. The Puerto Rican experience with the United States was support. But Mr. Mathews told the senators that West Indian leaders he'd met were "fairly skeptical" and thought any arrangement with Canada was many years away, after the Caribbean free trade area had established

When he appeared before the committee this month, Mr. Mathews warmed to the idea. Some ideas started unexpectedly large changes in thinking: perhaps free trade could provide the spark to allow the Caribbean to break into developing a big industrial potential. "What makes Hong Kong Hong Kong?" he mused. Perhaps it could happen in the

His paper threw up a lot of other questions. Why is Canadā buying only 5 per cent of its citrus imports from the Caribbean states? Why is it left to the United Fruit Co. to send bananas to Canada from Ecuador or Costa Rica, rather than from Jamaica? Changing tariffs would not alter this pattern, but other measures (including offering the West Indians managerial advisers) could help.

Some bolder ideas have been bouncing around the committee. Senator Grosart wonders aloud whether Canada should not offer to negotiate associate statehood with the Little Seven in the Commonwealth Caribbean. He did not mean the sort of association statehood these islands endure with Britain, which is at best a halfway-house to the uncertainties of full independence, but a progressive retogether tackling each new wave of problems.

One of the questions such an idea raises is that of immigration. Under the new regulations, the number of Caribbean immigrants coming to Canada in 1969 jumped to 14,200 from 7,800 in 1968. Mr. Demas complained Canada is 'creaming" off the most talented, but Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen told the senators that a lot of sponsored applications were being made-and this brings to Canada relatives who do not qualify by skills.

He said the Caribbean governments have a responsibility to see that their best brains do not leave. But this long-range exchange did not tackle the question of whether, if Canada accepts that it has a special relationship with the Commonwealth Caribbean, it should take more immigrants from there who do not have the education or training to meet the present universal test.

Senator Grosart said last week he thought one provision of associate statehood should be unrestricted immigration from the smaller islands. "It could mean 20,000 arrivals a

His ideas may be too avant-garde for members of the Senate committee, which has just started drafting its report. They almost certainly are for the government.

Realizing that nudity can take the theatre only so far (and that it's already been there), many people will be wondering what comes next. For an answer we turn to Jean-Pierre Romfard, secretary-general and prophet-extraordinary of Montreal's Theatre du Nouveau Monde.

He says that the audience informality which has been noted as a feature of Toronto's St. Lawrence Centre is "very nice . . . but it isn't enough, you know. Here at Nouveau Monde, we believe the time has finally come for a change of philosophy—perhaps a rev-olutionary change."

The Hemline of the Male Mind

By RUSSELL BAKER

Every time women prepare to change skirt lenghts, men are expected to become intensely involved. This is one of the many unpleasant burdens of masculinity in America.

If you are a man you are supposed to drink beer, sit stupefied in front of any box that happens to be showing a football game, and really care every time women's hemlines rise or fall.

The press promotes these antiquated conventions. "Bad news for men" begins the typical fashion story from Paris announcing that women's skirts will be longer this season. It is always considered "bad news for men" when hemlines fall and "good news" when they rise.

For the American man, apparently, unhappiness is having his wife's knee caps concealed. This cannot be true. however, for the millions of men whose wives have ugly knee caps:

What man, after all, is going to be made happier by knowing that behind his back his friends are saying, "don't get me wrong, I like old Joe well enough, but have you ever seen knee caps uglier than his wife's?"

For old Joe, good news is likely to be an announcement that skirts will be lower. Even that is not entirely good news since it means he will have to produce the price of a new wardrobe. But as this is an inevitability no matter which way skirts move, he has still had the better of two possible worlds. If the truth be known, Joe actually doesn't care which way skirts go. He noticed long ago that his wife's knee caps were not the best, but he reasoned that if she could put up with his ears and his habit of breaking furniture after a few drinks, it would be ridiculous of him to cavil about her knee caps. Moreover, like most men, Joe doesn't really care how long his wife wears her skirts, as long as she wears them the same length as all the other women they know. Not one man in a thousand truly cares whether skirts are long or short, so long as they are socially safe.

This is probably why men traditionally go through a transition period of grumbling when skirts are in flux. The husband who had to go to the Jones's party with the first wife in town to try the miniskirt must surely have had a miserable evening.

Last week, however, he and all the other husbands who were at the Jones's that night would, if asked, have said they liked skirts right where they end now — well above the knee. The 1935 look shown by Madam Pompidou on her American visit is more likely to leave them more unsettled than a mini riding eight inches above the knee.

In short, the American man doesn't care how long or short his lady's skirts may be so long as she doesn't complicate his life by looking different.

A wife in a skirt that is six months ahead of its time or two years behind it is like a son with a beard. What will the neighbors think? How can this ever be explained at the office?

Fashion, of course, whether in important than we usually like to admit. It is not a simple case, as we used to suppose, of masses of dancing to the whims of Paris tyrants.

The style with which a man dresses his head or a woman her torso makes a public announcement about the individual behind it. The statement is admittedly vague.

ambiguous and subject to misreading, but in some instances it is provocative enough to move men to violence, as in the beatings which short-haired males occasionally administer to long-haired males on the assumption that long hair connotes a dangerous and possibly bestial social predator.

The interesting aspect of fashion is how pervasively its dictates become known, and how quickly individuals run for cover inside the uniform of the with which they want to be

These days American men, rather than women, appear to be the polarized sex of the fashion issue. Women, after all, haven't resorted yet to physical against women who declined to cut their hair short and put on the miniskirt. Despite all the clubby joking about their wives being slaves to fashion, it is the men who seem to be obsessed with fashion nowadays.

The fact, then, is that "bad news for men" is neither the skirt rising nor the skirt descending, but a skirt length that is not like the skirt lengths of all the other women whose husbands you want to get along with.

105 Wheat CHICAGO (AP) futures advanced more than one cent on the Board of Trade today; influenced by some improvement in the export picture.

The U.S. government noted that feed grain production this year probably will increase and this tended to influence selling of corn and oats futures.

3-YEAR HITCH TO NEW PLATES

Somebody goofed.

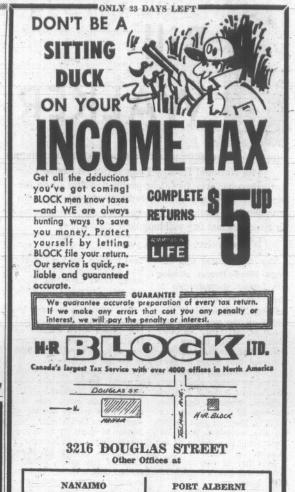

The new three-year licence plates may have been designed with economy in mind but they could prove costly for drivers of cars with conventional trailer-hitches.

The year-tag slot, situated centre bottom of the plate, is often hidden by the ball of the hitch and testing station officials are warning drivers that this situation can't go on.

A spokesman said today: "If there's nothing else wrong with the car we just give them a warning but if there are other defects we are telling them to get the ball taken off.

"That's fine for this year but what happens next year when it becomes vital that the year tag be visible?"

Economical. Dependable. Powerful. Available.

The subcompact Gremlin from American Motors. Styling, comfort, performance, reliability, price; all are the result of an intensive study of the small car buyer's requirements. And Gremlin meets and exceeds every requirement.

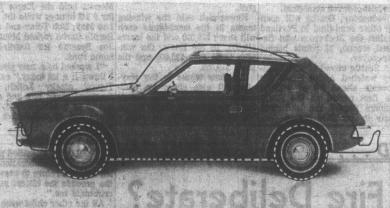

Take styling. The long hood, upswept roofline and slant-back configuration all combine to put a wedge to the wind. This, coupled with Gremlin's wide-track stance, gives outstanding stability even in cross

Models. Two. Gremlin comes in a two-passenger or four-passenger version. The four-passenger version features a rear seat which folds flat to provide additional storage space when required.

Engines. Two. A standard 128 hp Six. An optional 145 hp Six. Power and plenty of it for the North American road. Moreover, road tests demonstrate fuel economy of up to 27 miles per gallon. Multiply that by the 17 gallon fuel tank and you'll get a good idea of Gremlin's operational range.

Transmissions. Three. A 3-speed column mounted shift is standard with the 128 hp engine. A 3-speed floor shift is standard with the 145 hp engine. A column mounted automatic is optional with either engine.

Interiors, Ample, Getting inside a Gremlin is a rewarding experience, because everything inside is so familiar to the driver accustomed to North American cars. Room, comfort, convenience. It's all there.

A little bit longer, a little bit lower and a lot better looking than your average import.

Options. Unlimited. You'll find more than 40 items to put more fun, more power or more style in your driving. Along with the engine and the transmission options, there are; special axle ratios; power steering; power brakes; air conditioning; a roof luggage rack; a push button radio; a lift-up rear window and bucket seats, to name but a few.

Maintenance. Simple. Because of the long hood, the engine compartment boasts exceptional working room. Spark plugs, distributor, carburetor and fan belts are easily accessible. Front fenders bolt on. They can be removed and replaced quickly.

Taken in total. Gremlin is a very remarkable little car and presents to the small car buyer a valid alternative to the glut of imported cars currently on the market. See it for yourself at an American Motors Dealer. Form a first hand opinion of a North American subcompact. The first.

The National Hockey League can be excused for not worrying over its latest problem. What to do for an impossible finale? An incredible season is over. An unbelievable final week has ended. A bizarre scoring orgy on the last day will long be remembered.

It's been that kind of a year.

The climax came with Chi-final historic two weeks there cago Black Hawks winning the league championship in the very last game on the schedule. And to win it, they came all the way from last place of last year. No other team in NHL history can make that claim. And they achieved that honor by beat-

Then came Montreal's turn. They knew what they had to do. The Ranger games was over. And they got the jump on the Hawks. But they couldn't hold it. The Hawks weren't about to blow a championship that quickly They forged ahead on sheer power. And halfway through the third period when the scoreboard showed a 5-2 margin, coach Claud Ruel of the Canadiens made his

He pulled his goalkeeper. He decided he had no other wasn't likely; tie, which was also doubtful; or score goals which were hard to come by, any cost. The cost was five returns. Five goals into an empty net. Montreal was out.

Some have called the goaliepulling move a farce. If it was a farce, it was only because of the rules. For the coaches, it was the one chance they had. They used it. Other pro hockey leagues don't use the goals-for record as a tie breaker. They don't use victories, either. Tie results are played off. It could come to this in the NHL. But under the present rules, there can be no complaint. Think what would have been said if Ruel's move had succeeded? Montreal, it will be recalled, recognized their task even before Sunday. Their goalie was pulled on Saturday when

For Boston, second best had to be a disappointment, but only because of Chicago. The two teams tied in that frenzied finish, but Chicago won more games.

Detroit, pawn of New York in Sunday's critical contest, could just as easily have taken it all, if Chicago, or Boston had faltered.

New York, leaders through most of the year, were just plain lucky at the finish. Montreal was the victim of

The enormity of the Chicago surprise, however, didn't come into full view until late season. As mentioned earlier, they were dead last at the start, on the move by Christmas but still in fifth place as late as Feb. 19. They had only 63 points, 12 behind New York, who had one more than Boston. Final league statistics tell the rest of the tale.

And they had Tony Espo sito, a Montreal cast-off. He made it apparent that destiny was on Chicago's side. He had 15 shutouts, a modern dayrecord. He allowed fewer goals than any other net minder, and he probably will win the Calder Trophy as well as the Vezina. The Calder award is for the top rookie.

For mere hockey players there was nothing to rival the exploits of young Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins.

He was "Mr. Everything" all season long. He has convinced all the unbelievers. He not only did what was considered impossible, for defenceman, winning the NHL scoring championship, but he set a new record for assists as well. He will win the Hart Trophy, awarded the league's most valuable player, and the Norris Trophy, for the top-rated defenceman. There can be no argument. Only the a cruel fate, nothing else, and the fact they couldn't beat Chicago on the final weekend. That was their fatal fault.

One date is as good as any to start to recount briefly the Chicago story. And that could be before the season began. Bobby Hull wasn't going to play because he was disturbed over a contract problem Centre Pit Martin told every one off on the Hawks. And they all listened. This was the most surprising fact of all. Martin said if the Hawks would stick to playing hockey instead of catering to its stars, they would do better than all right. They did. And Martin did, too, getting a career high of 30 goals, three in the final game And so the Hawks came from last to first, but they lost five of their first six games before they really got Martin's message. Coach Billy Reay put it across, and right now he must be the coach of the year. There can be no dispute. And Bobby Hull came back to prove that Martin had a valid point for telling it like was. And that made him a bigger man in the eyes of

Outcry May Force NHL To Change Regulations

MONTREAL (CP)-National Hockey League governors will likely discuss rules changes next June in an attempt to restore the league's image. tarnished by jockeying for playoff positions during the windup week of the schedule.

League-president Clarence Campbell said "the clubs were doing the right thing under existing regulations; it is up to the governors to make any changes."
He was commenting following the uproar which followed tactics employed by the New Canadiens in their last-ditch fight for the fourth and last playoff berth in the East

Both clubs took their goalkeepers out of the nets in the third period and seven goals were scored into empty goals. Chicago Black Hawks got five them in a 10-2 victory which eliminated Canadiens from the playoffs and Detroit Red Wings got the other two in the game won by Rangers,

It was all because fourth place was to be decided by the number of goals scored, and it seems certain that changes will be made.

Campbell suggested that one solution might be to adopt a system similar to the one used by the Canadian Football League, where point ties are decided by how the clubs fared against each other in schedule play. If that fails to break the tie, then it's decided by the difference in points for and against in the games involving the two

CALGARY (CP) — Plans to make the Blackfoot Indian Reserve into a tourist attraction were announced Monday by Marvin Fox, partner in Native Development Services.

The plan calls for expenditure of about $1,000,000 and visualizes creating employment and a major source of income for the reserve's 2,300 residents. Unemployment level on the reserve now is 89.5 per cent.

The 200-acre development, to be completed in 1976, would include swimming pools, a craft shop, a fort, camp grounds, teepee village, motel, golf course, picnic grounds, riding stables and a trout fishing pond.

The development would be owned and operated by the Blackfoot Indians.

Winnipeg Aldermen Attack Civil Defence

WINNIPEG (CP) — Civil defence was under attack in Winnipeg city council chambers Monday night.

Aldermen withheld approval of a defence department request that an agreement maintaining warning sirens in six fire stations be renewed for a five-year period.

Alderman Leonard Claydon told council that "If you turned on the sirens right now no more than a handful of people would know what is happening."

His motion to refer the matter back to the utilities and personnel committee was approved unanimously.

holder.
In 1950, at the age of 20, he took out a "Whole Life" policy with a face value of $10,000, and with participation in profits. His annual premium is $180, so that he has now paid a total of $3,600 in premiums.

During these same 20 years, we increased the value of his 'sum assured' through Bonus additions by $6,672.00.

This means that, for his $3,600.00 premium payments, our policy holder's policy now has a claim value of $16,672.00 (the original face value plus Bonuses) — which is a comforting thought in our inflationary economy.

Naturally, this is an example of past performance; we can't guarantee its continuance in the future. But our track record is pretty good: the only changes in bonuses we've ever made in peace time have been increases. And for 1969, in spite of the new income tax assessments, we have maintained our previous bonus rate.

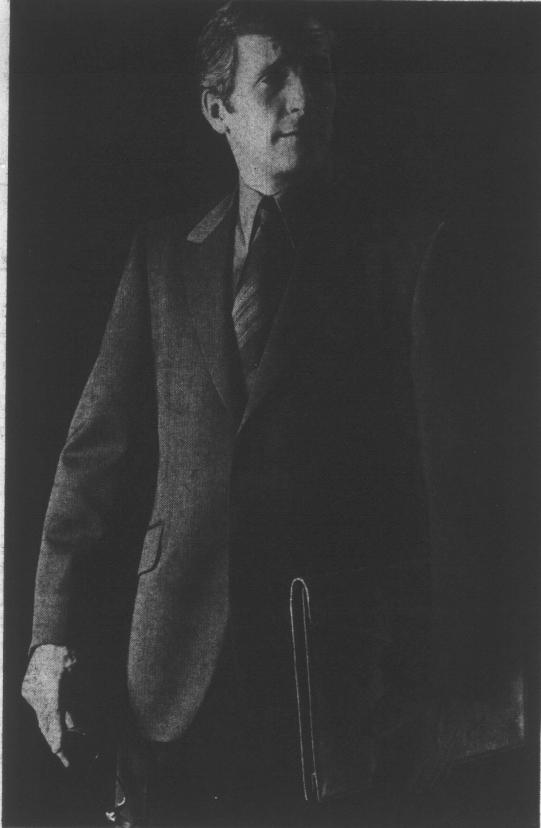

The technical name for this growth idea is Full Reversionary Bonus Plan. One of our salaried professionals will be glad to explain it to you, and to discuss how and where a Standard Life Growth Policy fits into your personal financial plans.

day with possession of seven $1,000 B.C. Hydro bonds alleged to have been stolen from the Vancouver firm of King and Scarfe Ltd.

Rene Talon, 36, of 1133 Fort Street, admitted possession of the bonds but stated through his counsel, Dermod Owen-Flood, that he did not know they had been stolen.

"He had no criminal intent," counsel said, "and he cashed these bonds because of threats he would be killed."

Crown counsel Cecil O. D. Branson called several Victoria bank employees who testified that Talon cashed the stolen bonds at various local banks on Jan. 13 last.

SETTLE DEBTS

In every case, Talon said he needed the cash to settle some debts.

Murray R. Thice, administrative officer at the Bank of British Columbia, said Talon asked him to cash two $1,000 B.C. Hydro bonds.

"I noticed the bonds had matured in September, 1969," he said, "It didn't seem right that a person would keep the bonds that long when they were no longer earning any

Piles of Dogs Feared in Oak Bay

Just imagine what it would be like if all the dogs of Oak Bay gathered at Cattle Point for their daily exercise.

This rather bizarre possibility was put to Oak Bay council by Mrs. Edith Lansdowne, 913 Victoria, when she and three other residents protested against the proposed bylaw to keep dogs off beaches from June 1 to Sept. 30.

Mayor Frances Elford had told them that they could still use Cattle Point for exercising their dogs. Aldermen Douglas Watts and Brian Smith agreed there should be some easing of the ban, and the mayor asked Smith to work out a solution. 'I seemed to be dogged with the chore," reEsquimalt Ald. E. L.

SHEER FUTILITY'

"I think it's an exercise in sheer futility," Ald. Arthur Mebs told Mayor Arthur Young, indicating that the Esquimalt mayor could attend a meeting if he had nothing to do.

Ald. Walter Lock said he felt Haddock was reacting to pressure from the provincial government.

De Costa questioned the wording of the letter, pointing out it referred, in one in-stance, to the whole region amalgamating and later the four municipalities joining. Ald. J. W. Bell said Esquimalt should not attend discussion on amalgamation unless all mayors in the region participated. Bay Smith described amalgamation as "one of the great panaceas of the 1950s" which had become outdated once regional concept was estab-

B.C. Hydro is willing to put its controversial Interurban-Burnside power line underground - if Victoria area residents will pay the cost — says Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the crown corporation.

The response came in a letter from Shrum to a local woman who was one of the organizers of a 450name petition protesting the four-mile, 132,000-volt line in Saanich and Victoria

Hydro is planning to carry the line on 75-foot-high steel poles along the road. This height is equivalent to a seven-storey building.

'QUITE UNFAIR' "Judging by the wording of the petition," Shrum wrote, "it would appear that residents in the Greater Victoria

FINALLY, SNOW AND IN APRIL

Snow in Victoria? In April?

No snow job; it's true. Several Island points, including some spots in Greater Victoria, got a light dusting Monday.

The snowfall ranged from traces around Victoria to almost half an inch and a hailstorm in the Port Alberni - Ucluelet area. Snow was also reported on the road between Campbell River and Gold River.

A weather office spokesman said today the snow was due to a cold front moving across the south coastal region with a freezing level of about 2,000 feet. He said the usual freezing level for this time of year is about 8,000-9,000 feet. He said precipitation started as snow, but for the most part turned to rain and snow that did manage to hit the ground quickly melted.

The spokesman said a disturbance now moving into the area will result in rain tonight with the possibility of more wet snow mixed with the rain in higher elevations Wednesday.

The book Gladys held up costs $3.95 and is a step-by step manual on sewing various kinds of garments with knit fabrics. With diagrams and descriptions it tells how to handle each phase of sewing — right down to finishing the neck of a Tshirt so it looks professionally

"But you're fine when you're shown," my friends replied. "The store where I bought this offers lessons, too. I've registered for the next set; why don't you?"

The next set of eight lessons begins May 4. Each lesson is two hours long and the complete course costs $15. There are lessons at times to suit anyone's schedule.

"Of course," added Gladys, "that fee only includes in-struction and the homework involves making a garment or two, so the course will eventually cost more. But you'll have the outfits to show for it. Besides, you don't have to make every item on the lesson plan. Just the ones that appeal to you."

The shop where Gladys discovered all this specializes in selling knit fabrics, from the new easy - care acrylics to old favorites such as cotton knits and double-knit wools. There isn't a non-stretchy fabric in the place.

The selection is wonderful, and rather than have disapprietors are willing to do everything to help make the garment a success

What could be more fun?
Here is how to go about it. Soak the beans in cold water for two days or until the shells begin to break and the sprouts just show. Then spread evenly but not too closely on a piece of dampened flannel in a tray. Put the tray into a dark cupboard at 70 deg. F. by a thermometer.

The operation in the south, however, suffered from non control of troops, resulting in the stories of looting and raping. The damage was not as great as depicted, he said Wrinch saw the refugees crowding the roads, returning

Of the funds allocated to education, $3,700 was spent in elementary schools and $15,900 on secondary and advanced students. West Indies schools received $88, encouraging commonwealth $199 and $1,100 was spent on IODE calendars. Special edu-cational work took $5,100 of the budget.

The largest single estimate went to clothing and bedding $26,900. Amenities such as health kits, nursery bags and m a g azines accounted for $6,600 while institutional serequipment and tools for hospitals, clinics, Indian centres - took $4,800. Food donations were valued at $2,350; recreation, $2,300; national service funds, $1,300; and remembrance, $600. Administration expenses came

The report from the Jessie R. Burke memorial (cancer fund) committee showed there is now $1,000 original fund: $1,400 in the memorial card fund and $1,700 in the research fund. A um of $700 was given to the B.C. Cancer Institute during the year for a microscope.

The Emerson House Comreport outlined the work of this home for elderly omen and suggested that the delegate discuss whether it the changing needs of the guests. It suggested that expansion of the house might worthwhile, because a larger number of guests would enable the IODE to offer them more services.

Fire Inquest Urges Tests For TV Sets

DUNCAN - All television sets should receive periodic safety tests, a coroner's jury recommended Monday night.

However, the six-man jury under foreman Harold D. Smith could not or would not definitely say whether a television set was the cause of a fire in which a Duncan mother and her three children died.

TENTATIVE DATES SET

Civil Servants To Vote on Pay

DUNCAN - Members of Duncan branch of the BC Government Employees' Union will vote this month on the 1970 wage increase proposed for them by the provincial Branch president W. R. W. Novis said today the group has tentatively scheduled its wage ratification meetings for April 19 at the legion hall in Ganges and for April 26 at the Commercial Hotel in Duncan.

The reason for the tentative dates, Novis said, is the BCGEU doesn't know exactly when the government will make its wage announcement for 1970. It usually comes in

Novis said the dates for the branch's ratification meetings will be set as soon as the wage proposals are

He said the other 54 branches in the 14,000-member BCGEU will also be holding wage ratification meetings this month. This will be the first time, however, that all BCGEU members have had the chance to vote yes or no ontheir annual wage increase.

JOHNNY CASH, 8:30 p.m., Channel 8, Patti Page, Tony Joe White and Sonny James are the guests. Johnny sings about truckdrivers on his special Ride This Train segment. Other songs include Patti's Tennessee Waltz and Please Release Me, High Sheriff by Tony and My Love by Sonny.

SPECIAL. 9 p.m., Channel 4. "The Robert Goulet Show." Robert Goulet, the "matinee idol" of the nightclub circuit, brings his big baritone voice and tall good looks to TV in a stylish outing. Assisting Goulet are comics Bob Hope, Jo Anne Worley, Bob Denver, and singer Diahann Carroll, plus the Clara Ward Singers. Highlights of the hour are a beautifully staged sequence with Goulet singing "MacArthur Park;" Miss Carroll's dynamic solos; and a surprisingly serious rendition of "How to Handle a Woman" by Bob Hope. A pleasant show.

"THE ACADEMY AWARDS." 7 p.m., Channel 2, 4, 6. Live from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Los Angeles County Music Centre, Hollywood's main event of the year, the "Oscar" ceremonies take place tonight. Last year's format, using many presenters prevails, with 18 "Friends of Oscar" handing out the awards, among them Raquel Welch, Fred Astaire, Myrna Loy, Yves Montand, Elizabeth Taylor, Bob Hope and James Earl Jones. Song nominations are performed by Glen Campbell, Nancy Sinatra, Lou Rawls, B. J. Thomas and Michael Legrand. Also producer-director Richard Dunlop offers filmed interviews with such famous directors as Fellini, David Lean and John Schlesinger to add interest to the proceedings. Tune in and see how your personal favorites fare.

NBC WHITE PAPER. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. "Pollution Is a Matter of Choice." The title of this documentary on the problem of pollution in this country is meant to be taken literally. It really means that the people of the nation must make their decisions on what they're willing to sacrifice to clean up their atmosphere. For example, in travelling around the country to Gary, Indiana, it would seem that the people have already opted for more technology with jobs rather than a program of cleansing the air. In the Florida Everglades, the people have temporarily chosen conservation rather than a jetport which would bring varied pollutants with its operations. Machiasport, Maine, an area urgently in need of jobs, is still considering the alternatives of clean air versus oil industry facilities. In other words, the hour speculates on the kinds of choices Americans will make in finding a balance between technology and a livable environment.

FIRST TUESDAY. 9 p.m., Channel 5, As usual, NBC's monthly edition of its magazine-of-the-air covers a wide range of subjects of varying significance. Tonight, there's a rare report on the daily life in prison, filmed by the inmates themselves of the Missouri State Penitentiary, which sheds some light on a little known aspect of prisoner ingenuity. Another segment offers a report on drug addiction in the Middle West, an area which seems to have caught up with the problem by now and is trying to meet it and beat it in a variety of ways. Also on view are a study of a rock group named "Chicago," a report on the horrible dangers involved in what seemed like a family sport, snowmobiling, and a BBC film on a 35-second play produced at

MONTREAL TRUST

THE SALESMAN

Anyone buying or selling a home will give some thought to the purpose served by the real estate salesman. The salesman — the good-salesman that is, and most are — in long hours do go gressrice to the buyer and the seller of property. In the first place he is a knowledgeable adviser as to price, saleability, listing methods, etc. whose advice to the prospective vendor is worth while.

When a listing is given, he takes the responsibility for seeing that the property is advertised to best advantage; that, if destrable, other Realthors are alerted to the possibility of a sale, and works with the sale how the property is advertised to best advantage; that, if destrable, other Realthors are alerted to the possibility of a sale, and works with the case of the property is advertised to the possibility of a sale, and works with concern by the vendor of the salesman and all the case of the property with the case of the property of the salesman and all the potential buyers gives him a "feel of the market" for this particular property which cannot be equalled. He will know a great deal about the legal requirements of connetting the property which cannot be equalled. Since a good-deal is a deal which is advantageous to both buyer and seller, the good salesman works hard to ensure a deal fair to both. Perhaps we can give further consideration to the relation of the salesman to the buyer another time.

Two Dead In Crush Near Queen

MELBOURNE (UPI) - An estimated 50,000 persons crowded around for a glimpse the Royal Family downtown Melbourne Monday. Two persons collapsed and in the crush.

Queen Elizabeth looked worried, Prince Charles waved nervously but Prince Philip and Princess Anne smiled and appeared relaxed as they walked 400 yards through the busy area.

Police said a man and a 17year-old typist collapsed and died in the crowd.

Police were so harassed at one stage they bodily lifted a girl who fainted near the royal car and pushed her, semi-conscious, back into the crowd.

The Queen, Prince Philip, Princess Anne and Prince Charles walked to waiting cars that drove them to the royal yacht Britannia, where they ate lunch.

They arrived Sunday in Melbourne from Tasmania to attend a state reception Monday night. They have another full day today, visiting a race course, a museum, a wool store and a dinner dance.

The battle continued at Saanich council Monday night over B.C. Hydro's plans for overhead transmission lines. It was decided to:

• Suggest the Crown orporation use Gorge Bridge, where ducts exist, to carry a distribution line across the Gorge rather than string the between Harriet and Arm, or to run an underwater in view of efforts to beautify the inland waterway;

Ask Hydro to take a careful second look at its plan to expropriate the homes of five families on Munn Road for a widened right-of-way;

• Invite the municipality's members of the legislature — Waldo Skillings and W. N. Chant of Victoria constituency, Herb Bruch of Esquimalt and John Tisdalle of Saanich-the Islands, to explain provincial policies on overhead transmission lines and expropriation.

Several council members pointed out that there is hardly anything council can do legally in a battle against B.C. Hydro except to act as a public forum.

Royal Roads Grad Returns As Chief

A former graduate will return to Royal Roads Military College in August to take over as commandant.

Capt. Robert C. K. Peers, 43, will succeed Col. Kenneth F Lewis 40 who has held the post since August 1968. Lewis has been appointed to the National Defence College in Kingston, Ont.

Born in Vancouver and educated in Victoria, Peers was graduated as a midshipman from the local college in

Now commander of the 2nd Canadian Escort Squadron, based in Esquimalt, Peers will be with ships of his squadron and HMCS Provider when they visit Osaka next month to represent Canada at Expo 70.

He has held his current appointment since August

Taking his early training with the Royal Navy, Peers later served in the Korean war zone, doing two tours of duty aboard the destroyerescort HMCS Sioux.

Returning to Canada, he commanded the coastal mine-sweepers HMCS Chignecto and HMCS Trinity, working out of Halifax. As specialist in torpedo and anti-submarine warfare, he also commanded the destroyer-escort HMCS Annapolis when she was commissioned in Halifax in December 1964. Other appointments have included a c t i n g as RCN liaison officer with a United States Navy anti-submarine force, a naval headquarters' position in Ottawa, and Maritime Command, Halifax

Planners Generalize' -Campbell

Professional planners have a habit of generalizing, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Monday.

He was replying to com-ments by Saanich planner Tom Loney that the provincial government has avoided any role of leadership in urban problems which receive scant attention from a legislature which appears domin-ated by rural values.

Campbell said most of the leadership which the municipal affairs department has exhibited, through setting up regional districts and suggesting municipal amalgamations, has met two standard phrases:

• Le a dership becomes dictatorship;

• "They're ramming it down our throats.'

He said the department has shown leadership in the un-organized areas by implementing regulations and zoning controls and "has prob-ably been kicked out of more community halls than any other government trying to get across the message of planning.

"NO HANDCUFFS"

There was "a great deal" of permissive legislation in the Municipal Act but it "puts no handcuffs on local government.

Campbell said municipaliincluding Saanich, can have as much planning and regulation as they want. He suggested Loney is "up suggested Loney is "up against political apparatus" because Saanich is not without authority to carry out the planning it wants.

The minister also said his department has suggested community and regional plans and imposed a 10-acre subdivision minimum in many unorganized areas.

'All of these things were done in the name of leadership, if you want to call it that," he said.

Campbell said references to rural influences in the legisla ture are irrelevant because 80 per cent of British Columbians live within municipalities which in turn occupy one half of one per cent of the land area.

He wondered what is rural about such areas as Nanaimo, Kelowna and Penticton.

Maples Produce Fine Blossoms

How many of us can describe the flowers of our large leaved native maple, Acer macrophyllum?

Although growing freely throughout lower Vancouver Island some of us may even say we didn't know these fine trees produce flowers.

Yet we have only to remember early fall when thousands of the winged "keys" are found near these maples to realize that if there are fruits there must have been flowers in spring.

Maples are blooming now, so the next time you are near one try to get a flower

They are lovely. Small greenish yellow perfect little blooms for the big-leaved native; but one of the red leaved forms is just now opening bronzy-red buds to show flowers of a sort of dull gold. Emerging from the darker calyces, these have a jewellike beauty. There is one maple, not native here but to the Atlantic coast, which sports delightful red flowers in profuse clusters before opening its leaves. This is the Red Maple, Acer Rubrum, green in summer but brilliant again with fall color.

Another native tree not often noticed when in flower is the Cascara-tree, Rhamnus purshiana. This occurs sometimes in our gardens as a result of seed dropped by a visiting bird.

Once we are able to identify the plant by the parallel leaf veins and its habit in spring of first clothing the tip of each little branchlet with bronzy tinged leaves, we shall realize that since the plant came to us via a chance seed, it must

These will eventually occur as the little tree grows. They are tiny, though borne in clusters, likely to pass unnoticed since their color is greenish white.

When the coast Dogwoods bloom in May, everyone is likely to notice, yet not be aware of the true flowers.

Don't be annoyed at this, but the waxy white parts we admire are bracts which develop in spring around the base of the flower cluster. The flowers are small and greenish, producing by fall a tight cluster of ripened red fruits, or

One more of our native trees is in bloom right now and is less easily missed — Arbutus menziesi, the Madrona of southern Vancouver Island.

Since this is the only native broadleaved eveergreen tree in Canada, all gardeners should be especially aware of it for beauty of foliage all year, profuse flowers in April, pealing red bark in summer, and scarlet fruits in fall much beloved

Look for these flowers this year and you will want to make some of these native trees part of your own garden

D'Arcy McGee's Poems Foretold His Murder

By BOB BOWMAN

D'Arcy McGee was an Irish revolutionary who became a Father of Confederation and was one of the greatest of them. He was also one of the best orators of his day and wrote excellent prose and poetry. One of his poems "Forewarned" includes these

"In the time of my boyhood I had a strange feeling That I was to die in the noon of my day, Not quietly into the silent grave stealing, But torn, like a blasted oak, suddenly away."

At 1:30 in the morning of April 7, 1868, D'Arcy McGee was unlocking the door of his rooming house in Ottawa when a man stepped from the shadows and shot him dead. There was no trace of the murderer except footprints in the snow and a reward of $20,000 was offered. It led to the arrest of a Fenian, James Patrick Whelan, who was convicted and hanged the following year. It was the last public hanging in Ottawa.

D'Arcy McGee had an extraordinary career and died, as he had prophesied in his poem, "in the noon of his day." He had to escape from Ireland in 1848 to avoid being arrested as a revolutionary.

After doing newspaper work New York, Boston, and Buffalo he decided that Canada was the nation of the future and went to live in Montreal where he founded a newspaper. He entered politics one year later, in 1858, and was elected to parliament

McGee's great ability as a speaker soon attracted attention. John A. Macdonald made him Minister of Agriculture in 1864, and he played an important part in the coalition government that paved the way for Confedera-tion. McGee led a public relations tour of the times before the Charlottetown conference, which he attended as a delegate, and was also at the Quebec conference later in the year.

On the night that he was murdered McGee had made an important speech in the House of Commons. It was the first session of parliament following Confederation. His funeral in Montreal was attended by 20,000 people, and the government voted a pen-sion for his widow and children. (Copyright, 1970, Toronto Star Syndic

SOME HIDING IN CANADA

WASHINGTON (WP) - The 12 Weathermen indicted by a federal grand jury last week have gone into hiding, some of them in Canada, authorities said Monday.

None of the 12, some of whom had been sought before the indictments were returned, has been arrested. All are being hunted.

The assistance of Canadian police has been sought in connection with the search for an unknown number who fled to that country in recent weeks.

WomenTaken For a Ride In Markets

By JACK SCOTT (First of Two Articles)

It's Russian Roulette, not judgment shopping, out there in Supermarketville.

The housewives of Victoria, faced with rising food costs as budget-punishing as any in Canada, are failing conspicuously to use "consumer power" as a means to control prices.

The silent majority of women shoppers are bewitched, bothered and bewildered by an Alice's Wonderland of sophisticated, high-pressure marketing methods that have resulted in all but total defeat in The Great War of Making Ends Meet.

Women are being taken for a ride every time the pilot a shopping cart through inviting corridors of merchandise calculated to dazzle and confuse them in the struggle to stretch a dollar that's lost nearly 20 per cent of its purchasing power in only

'Helpless' in the Marketplace

While soaring food prices hit hardest at the poor and the pensioned — so much so that Victoria families on welfare are incapable of realizing the minimum requirements for a definitively healthful - moderate and middle income families are caught helplessly in a marketplace where their ability to provide checks and reins on prices no longer significantly influences the staggering cost of eating.

These are the angry, well-documented views of a small group of Victoria women who think it's not too late to do something about it.

They are, in the words of one of them, "Nice Nellies who've decided it's time to start kicking, scratching and bitching.

Focus on Food Forum Set

Still smouldering at the refusal of chain store executives to participage in a Focus on Food consumers' forum to be held here Wednesday night in co-operation with the Greater Victoria School Board adult education division, five newly-militant leaders of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada have gone to the attack against the apparent indifference of the shopping

"Women are just not rising to their responsi-bilities and taking the initiative," says Mrs. Helen Forrest, president of the local branch.

Its membership alone — a roll-call of just 400 women after 23 years of existence, less than half the membership of the Victoria Women's Canadian Club - is a reflection, as they see it, of the unwillingness or inability of Victoria women to organize in a battle they fight, individually, every shopping day of their lives.

The incentives to join, they say, are obvious:

 Consumer prices in 1969 rocketed at the fastest annual rate in almost 20 years.

 Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures showed a food price rise of 3.6 per cent last year, the sharpest increase since 1966

Victoria shares with Vancouver and the Maritime cities the burden of the highest metropolitan food costs in the country, due mainly to the centralizing of food processing in Ontario and Quebec and fewer competing retail outlets.

• Gallup pollsters have discovered the not-too-surprising fact that the high cost of living is the primary concern of the average Canadian.

It is costing the Victoria shopper $16.46 to buy what $10 bought in 1949.

Yet the one existing voluntary organization set up to combat the runaway costs of food and the merchandising gimmickry that contributes to it can show no appreciable gain in support in a steadily worsening situation.

Group Needs 'Silent Majority'

Says Mrs. Ruth Clay, a trained home economist and recording secretary of the Victoria branch: "Women say to us, 'I'll give you the $3 for membership, but don't ask me to join, I don't want to join another thing.' This is the silent majority. Without them we can do very little. There's indignation, supe, but it's short-lived. They blow up in the store and then go home and simmer down and say to themselves, 'What's the use?'."

There's strong evidence, too, that most women have abandoned what economist John Kenneth Galbraith called "consumer sovereignty" — the ability and the determination to control prices' through selective buying.

Arms Seized In House Raid

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCMP spokesman said today that 47 persons have been arrested so far in the biggest roundup of suspected drug peddlars in British Columbia history.

Among those arrested Monday was 18-year-old Richard Jesmer of Niagara Falls, Ont., the youth who accused Prime Minister Trudeau of assaulting him last August during a wild demonstration in front of the Seaforth Armory here.

Jesmer's attempt to have a common assault charge laid against the Prime Minister for slapping him in the face was dismissed by a justice of the peace.

The youth was charged with trafficking in LSD and was remanded without bail when he appeared before a provincial court judge later Monday.

ARMS SEIZED

Police also revealed that a quantity of arms was seized in one of the houses raided.

A spokesman said they seized a .32-calibre revolver, a Sten gun, a shotgun and three rifles along with knives, a bayonet and a quantity of ammunition.

Monday, police issued war-rants for 97 persons including 16 juveniles and eight women More than 50 Vancouver city police and RCMP officers took part in raids Monday.

They were acting on information supplied by four undercover RCMP officers. Two of the officers posed as long-haired hippies and two others infiltrated the drug d istribution underworld, a police spokesman said.

The officers were brought into Vancouver from other areas last Nov. 15 to investigage trafficking in marijuana, mescaline, heroin, methadon cocaine, LSD, barbituarates, amphetamines and hashish.

A four-month undercover investigation by RCMP on Vancouver Island ended two weeks ago with 48 warrants issued all involving trafficking in either, heroin, hashish marijuana, LSD, or mesca-Since the warrants have

Term Urged WASHINGTON (AP) - A U.S. congressional committee calling marijuana traffic an $850,000,000-a -y ear business preying on the young in the United States, nevertheless suggested today reducing the penalty for first-time possession of the drug to no more than a week in jail.

The House Representatives select committee on crime said marijuana traffic "plays a major role in leading increasing numbers of young Americans into tragic drug dependence and into lives of crime and degradation."

But the committee's report, prepared for release today, called the present stiff and un evenly-enforced penalties for possession of marijuana a threat to respect for law in general

"The growing drug cul-ture," said Chairman Claude Pepper (Dem. Fla.), "is rapidly undermining respect for law and is doing serious damage to the ability justice system to criminal safeguard the lives and property of the American

NOT A SOLUTION

"Savagely repressive and punitive laws cannot be defended as a solution to the marijuana problem," the report said.

The committee recommended first offence possession of marijuana be made a misdemeanor. It suggested federal legislation be patterned after a Nebraska law which provides for a maxisegration of drug violators from other prisoners and a requirement that the violators take a drug abuse education

BONN (CP) Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp is reported to have told a group of prominent West German industrialists today that Canada's negotiations to recognize Communist China have taken a hopeful turn. Informants said he also advised them that the Soviet Union is no longer opposing participation of Canada and the United States in any future European security conference. Sharp made these responses during a question period at a luncheon by the West German Foreign - Affairs Institute dustrial leaders and promi-Some West German concern was reported to have been expressed over Canada's de-cision to withdraw one-half of its NATO force in Europe. Informants said Sharp responded by maintaining that Canada would be on the front line of any nuclear exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union and that Canada might well be the first country to be eliminated in such a holocaust. He said Canadian troops in Europe involved heavy cost and the Canadian government could not justify such cost in view of the need for reducing the administration's overall expenditures

The move followed discussion during which Ald. William Noel and Ald. Foster Isherwood opposed a decision by the regional hospital board to hire an information officer on a parttime basis.

Neither alderman is a direc tor on the regional board.

Noel said if the business of Saanich council can get by without an information man, so can the regional district.

But after the reasons were explained, he said, You haven't convinced me completely but I am beginning to think you have a good argu-

Mayor Hugh Curtis, who is also regional board chairman, said the board is engaged in "very complicated relation ships" particularly on hospitals.

It was important for someone to analyse the board's activities and point out what it is doing.

The nature of the news media is to seize on the controversial he said, and occasionally pass by those things which are not controversial.

Ald. Edith Gunning, a regional board director, said the information man will tell what is being done to provide hos-pital beds.

And Ald. Leslie Passmore Saanich's third director on the regional board, said most people feel the board is dragging its feet and it is necessary to have information man to tell ratepayers why beds are not being built and to "create an atmosphere" for the next referendum for $40 million in acutecare beds.

Ald. William Campbell said the point of issue is whether the Saanich members on the board can spend local money on their own, without reference back to

5-YEAR HITCH TO NEW PLATES

Somebody goofed.

The new five-year licence plates may have been designed with economy in mind but they could prove costly for drivers of cars with conventional trailer-hitches.

The year-tag slot, situated centre bottom of the plate, is often hidden by the ball of the hitch and testing station officials are warning drivers that this situation can't go on.

A spokesman said today: "If there's nothing else wrong with the car we just give them a warning but if there are other defects we are telling them to get the ball taken off.

Economical. Dependable. Powerful. Available.

The subcompact Gremlin from American Motors. Styling, comfort, performance, reliability, price; all are the result of an intensive study of the small car buyer's requirements. And Gremlin meets and exceeds every requirement.

Take styling. The long hood, upswept roofline and slant-back configuration all combine to put a wedge to the wind. This, coupled with Gremlin's wide-track stance, gives outstanding stability even in cross winds.

Models. Two. Gremlin comes in a two-passenger or four-passenger version. The four-passenger version features a rear seat which folds flat to provide additional storage space when required.

Engines. Two. A standard 128 hp Six. An optional 145 hp Six. Power and plenty of it for the North American road. Moreover, road tests demonstrate fuel economy of up to 27 miles per gallon. Multiply that by the 17 gallon fuel tank and you'll get a good idea of Gremlin's operational range.

Transmissions. Three. A 3-speed column mounted shift is standard with the 128 hp engine. A 3-speed floor shift is standard with the 145 hp engine. A column mounted automatic is optional with either engine.

Interiors. Ample. Getting inside a Gremlin is a rewarding experience, because everything inside is so familiar to the driver accustomed to North American cars. Room, comfort, convenience. It's all there.

A little bit longer, a little bit lower and a lot better looking than your average import.

Options. Unlimited. You'll find more than 40 items to put more fun, more power or more style in your driving. Along with the engine and the transmission options, there are; special axle ratios; power steering: power brakes; air conditioning; a roof luggage rack; a push button radio; a lift-up rear window and bucket seats, to name but a few.

Maintenance. Simple. Because of the long hood, the engine compartment boasts exceptional working room. Spark plugs, distributor, carburetor and fan belts are easily accessible. Front fenders bolt on. They can be removed and replaced quickly.

Taken in total. Gremlin is a very remarkable little car and presents to the small car buyer a valid alternative to the glut of imported cars currently on the market. See it for yourself at an American Motors Dealer. Form a first hand opinion of a North American subcompact. The first.

Council voted to ask Victoria to clearly define terms of reference. Until this is done they intend to take no further action.

The Saanich vote saw Mayor Hugh Curtis and Aldermen Edith Gunning, William Noel. Alan Newberry and Frank Waring in favor of preliminary discussions. Opposed were Aldermen Leslie Passmore, William Campbell, Edward Lum and Foster Isherwood.

Those opposed to amalgamation discussions said the benefits are already occurring through the regional district. that taxes have gone up in

All Right, Says Shrum ... You Pay!

By ROGER STONEBANKS

B.C. Hydro is willing to put its controversial Interurban-Burnside power line underground - if Victoria area residents will pay the cost — says Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the crown corporation.

The response came in a letter from Shrum to a local woman who was one of the organizers of a 450name petition protesting the four-mile, 132,000-volt line in Saanich and Victoria.

Hydro is planning to carry the line on 75-foot-high steel poles along the road. height is equivalent to a seven-storey building.

'QUITE UNFAIR'

"Judging by the wording of the petition," Shrum wrote, "it would appear that residents in the Greater Victoria and Saanich area strongly enough about this transmission line to assume individually the additional cost that would be involved in placing the line underground,

"If this is so, the whole problem would be solved immediately. It would be quite unfair to ask people living in other municipalities restrict their use of electricity so that capital should be made available for an underground transmission line in the Saanich-Victoria area. Shrum said he trusts petitioners will be contacted and be informed if they are prepared to assume the extra cost of underground versus overhead lines.

WHAT'S THE PRICE

A reply was on its way today from Mrs. Marie Bown, 166 Dunsterville.

She asked for the costs in detail, "how much to each home-owner, how would they be billed. We are taking for granted the additional cost being the difference between the offered tubular poles and underground wiring.

"Unless these facts are available, I cannot suggest this to Greater Victoria resi-People do not buy unless they know the price. Until then we will not be able to let you know if they are willing to assume this responsibility.

B.C. Hydro has put the cost of an underground line at $303,000 a mile compared with $80,000 a mile for the planned steel poles. Conventional would cost $25,000 a mile.

Officials of the Crown corporation have said on several occasions that their plans are based on costs—overhead lines are much cheaper than underground.

Opponents have pointed to the visual pollution of over-head lines which will remain for future generations and act as a blight on surrounding residential areas, depreciating property values and detracting from the quality of the environment. The new transmission line will bring additional power to meet growing demand in Greater Victoria from a hydro development at Jordan

FINALLY, SNOW AND IN APRIL

Snow in Victoria? In April?

No snow job: it's true. Several Island points, including some spots in Greater Victoria, got a light dusting Monday.

The snowfall ranged from traces around Victoria to almost half an inch and a hailstorm in Alberni - Uchielet area. Snow was also reported on the road between Campbell River and

A weather office spokesman said today the snow was due to a cold front moving across the south coastal region with a freezing level of about 2,000 feet. He said the usual freezing level for this time of year is about 8,000-9,000 feet. He said precipitation started as snow, but for the most part turned to rain and snow that did manage to hit the ground quickly melted. The spokesman said a disturbance now moving into the area will result in rain tonight with the possibility of more wet snow mixed with the rain in higher elevations Wednesday.

Arthur Mayse ..

IT IS NOW 39 DAYS, 14 bours and six minutes since I became a lonely smoker. That takes us back to the evening of Feb. 27. It was a Friday, and we had come home from a minor errand to relax in our living room. I offered my wife a cigarette, which she accepted. I didn't know it at the time, but that king-size filter tip was to be her last. Win wasn't aware of the fact, either. As she remembers now, she merely decided when she'd finished her cigarette to see how long she could go before lighting another. We read for a while, then set out to walk Lancer the Lab. It didn't occur to me that only one spark glowed and faded in the dark

Next morning, same story, I lit up automatically after breakfast, not noticing that my dear one abstained. Then, with the day well along, this départure from a shared custom finally registered.
"Hey," I said, "does this mean you've quit?"

"I'm not making any

Jolted, I reached for my cigarette pack. Always before, we'd tried to quit in We'd dramatized the effort, talked about it endand compared withdrawal symptoms in excruciating detail.

But Win made it plain that she was committed to a different approach. "I'm not going to follow anybody's program for ting." she said, "and I don't intend to chew gum or eat candy or take big drinks of water whenever I want a cigarette."

While she spoke, I'd been careful not to let smoke waft in her direction. She leaned and sniffed, wistfully "Lovely," she said. "Now let's not talk about it any

Secretly, I didn't think she'd make it. All through our married years-except during those brief and calamitous periods when we tried for make quitting cigarettes stick -we'd been loading ashtrays together But 10:30 p.m. came, and still she hadn't weakened

The second week was tough one. I got a hint of that when we were off in our car together. I reached for my cigarettes. "They're on the seat," Win told me. "I'll get one out." "Don't light it for me," said. "'Just one puff and you might be back where you started!"

"Don't I know it," she said. She plucked a cigarette from the pack, held it under her nose, and closed her eyes. Then, with a sigh, she surrendered it unlit.

Midway through the fourth week, I asked her how she was bearing up.

So to this morning, when my wife, the non-smoker decided she could risk extended discussion of what she learned in the course of her struggle against a habit she sought to be rid of.

She had just soared up our 106-step beach stairs—at least it appeared so to me, puffing along behind.

"The first week wasn't too hard," she said. "Perhaps I'd stored up enough nicotine to last that long. I got over-confident, and decided quitting was going to be easy. The second week was the bad one. It wasn't until then that I realized the thing about quit-ting I had to face."

That was that she badly wanted a cigarette. She wanted one after breakfast, and with our drink before dinner, and at all the times during the day when a smokebreak was a little reward for a job completed. Those who have never smoked aren't equipped to realize the dual role of the cigarette. It is enemy, yes. But it is also Further, there's no subštitute for it.

"I don't think I made real progress," Win said, "until I realized there's no sudden break-through. It's hard, and it stays hard. You simply learn to live with that fact.'

I asked her what she had gained from quitting.

"Mostly, freedom," she said. "I don't feel all that much different. But it's good to be free of ashtrays and matches and little panics because I've run out of cigarettes. And I like the feeling that I've put one over on the cigarette companies and their advertising.'

For me, one happy side effect. Smoking alone, I've cut my daily cigarette total by more than half. As for the remaining half, I'm making no promises and following no programs dreamed up by non-smokers who mean well, but don't know the score.

But when the time comes to try again, I needn't seek far for a solid example!

WomenTaken For a Ride In Markets

By JACK SCOTT (First of Two Articles)

It's Russian Roulette, not judgment shopping, out there in Supermarketville.

The housewives of Victoria, faced with rising food costs as budget-punishing as any in Canada, are failing conspicuously to use "consumer power" as a means to control prices.

The silent majority of women shoppers are bewitched, bothered and bewildered by an Alice's Wonderland of sophisticated, high-pressure marketing methods that have resulted in all but total defeat in The Great War of Making Ends Meet.

Women are being taken for a ride every time they pilot a shopping cart through inviting corridors of merchanides calculated to dazzle and confuse them in the struggle to stretch a dollar that's lost nearly 20 per cent of its purchasing power in only five years.

'Helpless' in the Marketplace

While soaring food prices hit hardest at the poor and the pensioned — so much so that Victoria families on welfare are incapable of realizing the minimum requirements for a definitively healthful diet — moderate and middle income families are caught helplessly in a marketplace where their ability to provide checks and reins on prices no longer significantly influences the staggering cost

These are the angry, well-documented views of a small group of Victoria women who think it's not too late to do something about it.

They are, in the words of one of them, "Nice Nellies who've decided it's time to start kicking, scratching and bitching.

Focus on Food Forum Set

Still smouldering at the refusal of chain store executives to participate in a Focus on Food consumers' forum to be held here Wednesday night in co-operation with the Greater Victoria School Board adult education division, five newly-militant leaders of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada have gone to the attack against the apparent indifference of the shopping

"Women are just not rising to their responsi-bilities and taking the initiative," says Mrs. Helen Forrest, president of the local branch.

Its membership alone — a roll-call of just 400 women after 23 years of existence, less than half the membership of the Victoria Women's Canadian Club — is a reflection, as they see it, of the unwillingness or inability of Victoria women to organize in a battle they fight, individually, every shopping day of their lives.

The incentives to join, they say, are obvious:

- Consumer prices in 1969 rocketed at the fastest annual rate in almost 20 years.
- Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures showed a food price rise of 3.6 per cent last year, the sharpest increase since 1966.
- Victoria shares with Vancouver and the Maritime cities the burden of the highest metropolitan food costs in the country, due mainly to the centralizing of food processing in Ontario and Quebec and fewer competing retail outlets.
- Gallup pollsters have discovered the not-too-surprising fact that the high cost of living is the primary concern of the average Canadian.
- It is costing the Victoria shopper $16.46 to buy what $10 bought in 1949.

Yet the one existing voluntary organization set up to combat the runaway costs of food and the merchandising gimmickry that contributes to it can show no appreciable gain in support in a steadily worsening situation.

Group Needs 'Silent Majority'

Says Mrs. Ruth Clay, a trained home economist and recording secretary of the Victoria branch: "Women say to us, 'I'll give you the $3 for membership, but don't ask me to join, I don't want to join another thing.' This is the silent majority. Without them we can do very little. There's indignation, sure, but it's short-lived. They blow up in the store and then go home and simmer down and say to themselves, "What's the use?"."

There's strong evidence, too, that most women have abandoned what economist John Kenneth Galbraith called "consumer sovereignty" — the ability and the determination to control prices through selective buying.

Mail Drivers Again Reject Ottawa Offer

MONTREAL (CP) - About 450 un employed Montreal mail truck drivers today unanimously rejected a new federal government offer to

As the post office moved mail to substations in about 85 rented trucks, former employees of G. Lapalme Inc. turned down the offer in a show of hands.

Guy Beaudoin, a director of the Confederation of National Trade Unions with which their union is affiliated, advised them to reject any offer which did not guarantee them job security.

In Ottawa, C. M. Drury, treasury board president, said the federal government's "very generous" final offer will expire April 15.

WILL HIRE 330

He told a news conference the post office will hire 330 former Lapalme employees, 45 of them as part-time employees.

Selected on the basis of seniority, the full-time employees would be paid their Lapalme pay rates of $3.25 an hour. 25 cents an hour more than regular post office employees in the same classification.

For three months, they would also retain seniority rights held at Lapalme for purposes of job choice and vacations but after that period would only obtain three months seniority as postal employees.

Last week, the same drivers rejected a govern-ment offer to hire 285 of their number as post office employees at $3 an hour. In both offers, the government has argued "that it cannot guarantee continued affiliation with the CNTU in recent years has raised their wages from about $1 an hour to $3.25. The existing post office

Arms Seized In House Raid

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCMP spokesman said today that 47 persons have been arrested so far in the biggest roundup of suspected drug peddlars in British Columbia history.

Among those arrested Monday was 18-year-old Richard Jesmer of Niagara Falls, Ont., the youth who accused Prime Minister Trudeau of assaulting him last August during a wild demonstration front of the Seaforth Armory here.

Jesmer's attempt to have a common assault charge laid against the Prime Minister for slapping him in the face was dismissed by a justice of the peace.

The youth was charged with trafficking in LSD and was remanded without bail when he appeared before a provincial court judge later Mon-

Police also revealed that a quantity of arms was seized in one of the houses raided.

A spokesman said they seized a 32-calibre revolver, a Sten gun, a shotgun and three rifles along with knives, a bayonet and a quantity of ammunition.

Monday, police issued war-rants for 97 persons including 16 juveniles and eight women. More than 50 Vancouver city police and RCMP officers took part in raids Monday.

They were acting on in-formation supplied by four undercover RCMP officers. Two of the officers posed as long-haired hippies and two others infiltrated the drug distribution underworld, a police spokesman said.

The officers were brought into Vancouver from other areas last Nov. 15 to investigage trafficking in marijuana mescaline, heroin, methadon, cocaine. LSD, barbituarates, amphetamines and hashish.

Maximum Seven-Day Term Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) - A U.S. congressional committee, calling marijuana traffic an $850,000,000-a -y ear business preying on the young in the United States, nevertheless suggested today reducing the penalty for first-time possession of the drug to no more than a week in jail.

The House of Representatives select committee on crime said marijuana traffic "plays a major role in leading increasing numbers of young Americans into tragic drug dependence and into lives of crime and degradation.'

But the committee's report, prepared for release today, called the present stiff and u n evenly-enforced penalties for possession of marijuana a threat to respect for law in

"The growing drug cul-ture," said Chairman Claude Pepper (Dem. Fla.), "is rapidly undermining respect for law and is doing serious damage to the ability of criminal justice system to safeguard the of the lives and people

"Savagely repressive and punitive laws cannot be defended as a solution to the marijuana problem," the report said.

The committee recommended first offence possession of marijuana be made a misdemeanor. It suggested federal legislation be pat-terned after a Nebraska law which provides for a maximum seven-day jail segregation of drug violators from other prisoners and a requirement that the violators take a drug abuse education

The man we want must be between the ages of 25 and 65. He must be married with family responsibilities. He must be a good citizen, active in community affairs. He must have an impeccable reputation. And a sincere desire to provide his family with a better than average living. To such a man we can offer:

 The opportunity and challenge found only in the opera-tion of his own business, and without having to make a substantial investment.

A product training that is second to none, and could lead to a professional status, with sincere and diligent effort on his part.

A substantial guaranteed income, plus exceptionally attractive incentives, that could provide a much better than average income. Last year this average was better than $12,500.

The security and peace-of-mind found only in comprehensive employment benefits such as pension — disability income, group life insurance and medical coverages for himself and family.

Plus the advancement opportunity found in a large International Company having representation from Coast to Coast and is well and favorably known by a substantial clientele in this area.

If you are such a man, and have the sincere ability to work hard For a confidential interview Phone John Suckling 656-1176 Victoria

Only One Answer: It's Time for Tea

At first glance this looks like a typical beach scene. Man walking dog. Children fooling around the sand. But sail boats, fully rigged and sails set, riding the sand? Speculation is that the boats were hurriedly beached at Cadboro Bay because the crews nearly missed teatime. (William E. John)

ESQUIMALT AND OAK BAY BALK AT INVITATION

Saanich Goes for Amalgamation Talks

Only Saanich is ready to sit down and talk with Victoria on the possibility of the four core municipalities amalgamating.

Esquimal aldermen, three minutes Monday night, unanimously decided they "not interested" in a letter from Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Mayor Haddock referred to city council's decision last month, to invite mayors of Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to discuss amalgamation and to strike a committee to review advantages and disadvantages and define terms of

Threats Against Life Forced Cashing of Bonds

A Victoria man was two $1,000 B.C. Hydro bonds. day with possession of seven like to open a personal $1,000 B.C. Hydro bonds alleged to have been stolen from the Vançouver firm of King and Scarfe Ltd."

Rene Talon, 36, of 1133 Fort Street, admitted possession of the bonds but stated through his counsel, Dermod Owen-Flood, that he did not know they had been stolen.

"He had no criminal intent." counsel said, "and he cashed these bonds because of threats he would be killed."

Crown counsel Cecil O. D. Branson called several Victoria bank employees who testified that Talon cashed stolen bonds at various local banks on Jan. 13 last.

SETTLE DEBTS

In every case, Talon said he needed the cash to settle some debts.

Murray R. Thice, administrative officer at the Bank of British Columbia, said Talon asked him to cash two $1,000

B.C. Hydro bonds.
"I noticed the bonds had matured in September, 1969," he said. "It didn't seem right that a person would keep bonds that long when they were no longer earning any interest."

Thice said, when he ques-tioned Talon about this, he replied:

"I didn't need the money until now. I have a couple of loans I want to pay off."

NO CONCEALMENT

Cross-examined by Owen-Flood, the witness said he knew Talon as a customer before he came to the bank to cash two bonds on Jan. 13. He operated a business called Plastic Arts on Government Street and had an account for it. The account was opened some time in November last Did he make any attempt to conceal his name or address when he cashed the bonds?" asked Owen-Flood.

"No," Thice replied. Mrs. J. G. Bjornsen, an employee of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said Talon asked her to cash She asked him if he would carry so much money around with him.

'VERY FRIENDLY'

Talon said he had bills to pay and needed the cash. But agreed to open a personal checking account and posited $150 from the $2,000.

DOWNTOWNERS VOTING ON CARPARK

At noon today 33 downtown property owners had voted on the $1.5 million parking referendum.

Eligible voters total 164. The vote requires a 60-percent majority to pass.
Polls remain open in the city clerk's office at city hall until 8 p.m. If approved the area vote will clear the way for a new 400-car parking building on Johnson Street plus expansion of View and Yates Street parking buildings.

plied Smith.

Answering Branson, the witness said Talon was very "friendly" at the time.
"Would you say he was asked Judge Montague Drake. "Yes," witness replied," "he seemed quite relaxed.'

relaxed?"

At the start of the trial, Owen-Flood said it was admitted that the seven $1,000 bonds were the property of King and Scharfe Ltd. of Vancouver and that they had been stolen.

'These facts are admitted in the interests of justice," counsel said, "but they are not to be construed as an admission of guilt. The accused does not admit that he knew they had been

Testifying today. Constable D. G. Sleivert, of the Victoria city police detective department, said that in an inter view with Talon, the accused had told him the two bonds had been given him by a Brian Johnson, who, in was a partner with him in the Chili Bar in Vancouver. Talon, said the constable, had said Johnson owed him

The bonds had been sent to Talon in 1967, while he was living in Saskatoon.

The trial continued today.

Piles of Dogs Feared in Oak Bay

Just imagine what it would be like if all the dogs of Oak Bay gathered at Cattle Point for their daily exercise.

This rather bizarre possibility was put to Oak Bay council by Mrs. Edith Lansdowne, 913 Victoria, when she and three other residents protested against the proposed bylaw to keep dogs off beaches from June 1 to Sept. 30.

Mayor Frances Elford had told them that they could still use Cattle Point for exercising their dogs. Aldermen Douglas Watts and Brian Smith agreed there should be some easing of the ban, and the mayor asked Smith to work out a solution.

'I seemed to be dogged with the chore," re-

All Right, Says Shrum .. You Pay!

By ROGER STONEBANKS

B.C. Hydro is willing to put its controversial Interurban-Burnside power line underground — if Victoria area residents will pay the cost — says Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the crown corporation.

The response came in a letter from Shrum to one of the organizers of a 450-name petition protesting the four-mile, 132,000-volt line in Saanich and Victoria.

'OUITE UNFAIR'

"Judging by the wording of the petition," Shrum wrote, "it would appear that resi-dents in the Greater Victoria and Saanich area strongly enough about this transmission line to assume individually the additional cost that would be involved in placing the line underground. "If this is so, the whole problem would be solved immediately. would be quite unfair to ask people living in other municipalities to restrict their use of electricity so that capital should be made available for an underground transmission area. Shrum said he trusts peti tioners will be contacted and informed if they prepared to assume the extra cost of underground versus overhead lines.

A reply was on its way today from Mrs. Marie Bown, 166 Dunsterville.

She asked for the costs in "how much to each home-owner, how would they be billed. We are taking for granted the additional cost being the difference between the offered tubular poles and underground wiring.

"Unless these facts are available, I cannot suggest this to Greater Victoria resi-People do not buy unless they know the price.
Until then we will not be able to let you know if they are willing to assume this responsibility.

B.C. Hydro has put the cost of an underground line $303,000 a mile compared with $80,000 a mile for the planned steel poles. Conventional wooden poles would cost $25,000 a mile.

Officials of the Crown corporation have said on several occasions that their plans are based on costs-overhead lines are much cheaper than underground.

Opponents have pointed to the visual pollution of over-head lines which will remain for future generations and act a blight on surrounding residential areas, depreciating property values and detracting from the quality of the environment.

The new transmission line will bring additional power to meet growing demand in Greater Victoria from a hydro development at Jordan

FINALLY, SNOW AND IN APRIL

Snow in Victoria? In April?

The snowfall ranged from traces around Victoria to almost half an inch and a hailstorm in the Port Alberni - Ucluelet area. reported on the road between Campbell River and Gold River.

A weather office spokesman said today the snow was due to a cold front moving across the south coastal region with a freezing level of about 2,000 feet. He said the usual freezing level for this time of year is about 8,000-9,000 feet. He said precipitation started as snow, but for the most part turned to rain and snow that did manage to hit the ground quickly melted.

The spokesman said a disturbance now moving into the area will result in rain tonight with the possibility of more wet snow mixed with the rain in higher elevations Wednesday.

WomenTaken For a Ride In Markets

By JACK SCOTT (First of Two Articles)

It's Russian Roulette, not judgment shopping, out there in Supermarketville.

The housewives of Victoria, faced with rising food costs as budget-punishing as any in Canada, are failing conspicuously to use "consumer power" as a means to control prices.

The silent majority of women shoppers are bewitched, bothered and bewildered by an Alice's Wonderland of sophisticated, high-pressure marketing methods that have resulted in all but total defeat in The Great War of Making Ends Meet.

Women are being taken for a ride every time they pilot a shopping cart through_inviting corridors of merchanides calculated to dazzle and confuse them in the struggle to stretch a dollar that's lost nearly 20 per cent of its purchasing power in only five years.

'Helpless' in the Marketplace

While soaring food prices hit hardest at the poor and the pensioned — so much so that Victoria families on welfare are incapable of realizing the minimum requirements for a definitively healthful diet — moderate and middle income families are caught helplessly in a marketplace where their ability to provide checks and reins on prices no longer significantly influences the staggering cost

These are the angry, well-documented views of a small group of Victoria women who think it's not too late to do something about it.

They are, in the words of one of them, "Nice Nellies who've decided it's time to start kicking, scratching and bitching.

Focus on Food Forum Set

Still smouldering at the refusal of chain store executives to participate in a Focus on Food consumers' forum to be held here Wednesday night in co-operation with the Greater Victoria School Board adult education division, five newly-militant leaders of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada have gone to the attack against the apparent indifference of the shopping

"Women are just not rising to their responsi-bilities and taking the initiative," says Mrs. Helen Forrest, president of the local branch.

Its membership alone — a roll-call of just 400 women after 23 years of existence, less than half the membership of the Victoria Women's Canadian Club — is a reflection, as they see it, of the unwillingness or inability of Victoria women to organize in a battle they fight, individually, every shopping day of their lives.

The incentives to join, they say, are obvious: Consumer prices in 1969 rocketed at the - fastest annual rate in almost 20 years.

- Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures showed a food price rise of 3.6 per cent last year, the sharpest increase since 1966.
- Victoria shares with Vancouver and the Maritime cities the burden of the highest metropolitan food costs in the country, due mainly to the centralizing of food processing in Ontario
- and Quebec and fewer competing retail outlets. • Gallup pollsters have discovered the nottoo-surprising fact that the high cost of living is the primary concern of the average Canadian.
- It is costing the Victoria shopper $16.46 to buy what $10 bought in 1949.

Yet the one existing voluntary organization set up to combat the runaway costs of food and the merchandising gimmickry that contributes to it can show no appreciable gain in support in a steadily worsening situation.

Group Needs 'Silent Majority'

Says Mrs. Ruth Clay, a trained home economist and recording secretary of the Victoria branch: "Women say to us, 'I'll give you the $3 for membership, but don't ask me to join, I don't want to join another thing.' This is the silent majority. Without them we can do very little. There's indignation, sure, but it's short-lived. They blow up in the store and then go home and simmer down and say to themselves, 'What's the use?'."

There's strong evidence, too, that most women have abandoned what economist John Kenneth Galbraith called "consumer sovereignty" — the ability and the determination to control prices through selective buying.

The vigilantes of the Victoria branch cite the current reaction to the continually rising costs of Continued on Page 3

VANCOUVER (CP)-An RCMP spokesman said today that 47 persons have been arrested so far in the biggest roundup of suspected drug peddlars in British Columbia history.

Among those arrested Monday was 18-year-old Richard Jesmer of Niagara Falls Ont., the youth who accused Prime Minister Trudeau of assaulting him last August during a wild demonstration in front of the Seaforth Armory here.

Monday, police issued warrants for 97 persons including 16 juveniles and eight women.
More than 50 Vancouver city police and RCMP took part in raids Monday.

They were acting on in formation supplied by four undercover RCMP officers. Two of the officers posed as long-haired hippies and two others infiltrated the drug d istribution underworld, a police spokesman said.

The officers were brought into Vancouver from other areas last Nov. 15 to investigage trafficking in marijuana, mescaline, heroin, methadon, cocaine, LSD, barbituarates, amphetamines and hashish. A four-month undercover investigation by RCMP on Vancouver Island ended two weeks ago with 48 warrants issued all involving trafficking in either heroin, hashish, marijuana, LSD, or mesca-

Since the warrants have been issued persons charged with trafficking have been appearing in the Provincial Courts at Victoria, Sooke, Nanaimo, Ganges and Campbell River.

Sharp Eases Anxiety Over NATO Pullout

Silver Chief

Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp is reported to have told a group of prominent West German industrialists today that Canada's negotiations to recognize Communist China have taken a hopeful turn.

Informants said he also advised them that the Soviet Union is no longer opposing the participation of Canada and the United States in any future European security con-Sharp made these responses during a question period at a luncheon by the West German Foreign Affairs Institute which included German industrial leaders and prominent bankers. Some West German concern was reported to have been expressed over Canada's de-cision to withdraw one-half of its NATO force in Europe. Informants said Sharp respended by maintaining that Canada would be on the front line of any nuclear exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union and that Canada might well be the first country to be eliminated in such a holocaust.

He said Canadian troops in Europe involved heavy cost and the Canadian government could not justify such cost in view of the need for reducing the administration's overall expenditures.
